United States Raps Khrushchev For 'Slaughter'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States accused Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev Friday of distorting U.S. summit conference policy while standing amid scenes of Soviet "slaughter . . . and treachery" in Hungary.

A State Department statement sharply chided Khrushchev for demanding a show of "good will" on the issue of suspending nuclear weapons tests. It prodded him to reply quickly to a western proposal for beginning diplomatic talks later this month on summit conference arrangements.

U.S. Reaction

The United States reaction was voiced by State Department press officer Lincoln White after Khrushchev, on a visit to Budapest, called on this country and Britain to follow the Soviet example and announce suspension of the testing of nuclear weapons. Khrushchev said he was prepared to accept international supervision of a ban on tests, but White noted that Khrushchev did not say what he meant by international supervision.

On this issue the Eisenhower administration is now engaged in a top-level review, with a prospect of decisions possibly modifying U.S. policy in two or three weeks. But there is no prospect of any American suspension of tests by agreement with other nations until after the imminent Pacific test series is completed next summer.

Irritation

The State Department statement indicated a considerable irritation in Washington with what some authorities consider Khrushchev's successful propaganda campaign. It also showed a readiness to throw hard punches back at the Soviet Premier in the first on-the-record comment made in response to public statements by him since he took over the premiership from Nikolai Bulganin last week.

White recalled that a United Nations resolution, opposed by the Soviet bloc but overwhelmingly adopted by the rest of the General Assembly, last November had laid out a step-by-step disarmament program beginning with a test ban under international inspection. Picking up Khrushchev's use of the "good will" idea, White said that this resolution represented "the greatest expression of intention of good will" which had been made in recent months but it was rejected by the Soviet Union.

"It is perhaps significant," White added, "that this statement by Mr. Khrushchev is made in Budapest where the U.S.S.R. demonstrated its 'good will' by the slaughter of Hungarian people just over a year ago when they sought to lift from their backs the yoke of a foreign-imposed domination."

Dr. Bendel Fund Climbs To $6,890 For Ball Park

Collections yesterday sent the Bendel Memorial Fund to a new total of $6,890 as friends of Little League baseball and the late Dr. William L. Bendel Sr. came through with another $180 during the day.

The fund is dedicated to construction of a Little League baseball stadium in Forsyth Park, and adding their contributions to the cause yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ritter, Friendly Finance, Smith Venetian Blind Company, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Noe, KNOE radio, KNOE-TV and a couple of "friends."

The $6,890 represents cash actually collected and banked by the board of trustees. Some pledges still remain to be collected in this drive for a desired $16,000 that will assure a lasting memorial to Dr. Bendel who for over 30 years contributed greatly to the youth of this area.

Contributions are still being solicited and all who desire to participate are being encouraged to get in their donations as soon as possible.

Since the stadium is to be built for Little League families who already have seen their boys through Little League, and those who have boys who may participate in the program in the future are invited to get in donations (Continued On Page 2-A)

Noted Group Asks Halt To Atom Testing

Asks Court To Use Injunction To Stop Blasts

WASHINGTON (UP)—Seventeen persons, including socialist Norman Thomas, philosopher Bertrand Russell and scientist Linus Pauling, asked a Federal Court Friday to issue an injunction blocking further U.S. atomic tests.

They also announced they would file a similar suit in Great Britain and attempt to file one in Russia. They sent a formal complaint to the Russian procurator-general in Moscow and were trying to obtain a visa so their lawyers could go to Moscow to press legal action. Named as defendants in the U.S. suit were Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy, and Chairman Lewis L. Strauss and four other members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Opposition

A Justice Department spokesman said the government would oppose the group's request. The government was expected to argue that members of the group are not directly affected by the U.S. tests. The group included British, Japanese and Canadian citizens.

Ike Declares California Disaster Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—President Eisenhower Friday declared California a disaster area as a new storm moved relentlessly toward the rain-ravaged state to further plague flood workers fighting to shore up dikes and levees.

A battering from gale-driven rain, hail and snow this week has already taken a toll of 12 lives and caused property damage in excess of 12 million dollars. The President took action to provide federal aid after conferring with California's senior senator, William F. Knowland. The Republican Senate leader met with Eisenhower after Gov. Goodwin J. Knight made a formal plea for federal help Thursday.

Knowland said the President was "deeply concerned" over the extensive flooding and storm damage northern California has suffered.

Subcommittee

Meanwhile the House Public Works Committee named Reps. John J. McFall (D-Calif.) and John F. Baldwin (D-Calif.) as a special subcommittee to make an on-the-scene inspection of the flood areas. They were to fly to California this weekend.

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported a new storm front moving southeast from the Gulf of Alaska was expected to sweep into water-logged north central counties by Saturday.

A day's respite from six weeks of almost continuous downpour gave disaster workers a chance to bring the battle of the levees to a stalemate in the Central Valley where the Merced and San Joaquin rivers threatened to inundate a dozen communities, large and small.

Rich farm lands and homes along rivers were flooded from Los Banos to the San Joaquin delta, at the upper end of San Francisco Bay, a distance of more than 100 miles.

Rain squalls, piling in on each other in an almost unbroken string since early in the year, have been described as the worst continuous storm in this area this century.

New Banks Open

Monroe is in for bank openings with a vengeance. The start came yesterday when Northeast Central Bank in the college area was opened for formal inspection. At about the same time, the Central's new bank far out south on Jackson street also had an opening.

Next week the wonderfully equipped down to the minute of perfection Ouachita National Bank's College Town branch at Louisville and De-Siard road will be opened. The general public will be invited to all the opening events.

State Police Warn Easter Motorists

Motorists were given warning yesterday by the State Police here to drive safely over the Easter weekend.

With many families expected to visit relatives on Easter Sunday, Troop F in Monroe called for safety on the area highways. The traffic is expected to increase today.

Free Parking
Meanwhile, Easter shoppers in Monroe will be able to park free in Monroe because of a decrease in traffic accidents during the first quarter of the year.

The order was handed down yesterday by Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard and Police Chief James C. Kelly, Jr. Kelly said local accidents dropped six per cent over the first three months of last year. But he asked motorists to drive carefully in Monroe today. Only one traffic death has been recorded in the city to date this year. Two occurred during the first three months last year.

All government offices will be closed in the Twin Cities today. Most closed yesterday and all will re-open Monday morning.

Local schools and colleges have turned out and some won't resume classes until Tuesday morning.

Churches throughout the Northeast Louisiana area are expecting large attendances tomorrow. Sunrise services will be held in several churches.

Local Group Asks For Aid For Surveys

Applications for federal funds to conduct a survey for a proposed capital improvement program were mailed yesterday, according to R. L. Vanderpool, Jr.

The move came as a climax to preliminary work done by the Citizens Committee, a group organized for the purpose of suggesting a capital improvement program here.

Vanderpool, who is chairman of the committee, said the committee requested $175,000 for the survey.

The committee, in its first public statement made several days ago, announced that it would ask the City Council to call a bond issue after the surveys were made.

According to Vanderpool, purpose of the surveys will be to determine the exact needs of the city.

Possible $6-Million Issue

"While the final amount to be submitted to the voters will naturally have to be decided upon after the engineering work has been completed, a figure of approximately $6,000,000 was generally discussed as a possible amount to begin the badly needed long range program of improving our streets, drainage and sewerage," Vanderpool stated.

He said the Citizens Committee and the City Council were in accord in intending to engage the services of Ford, Bacon and Davis Engineering Corp., S. E. Huey and Co., W. I. Neel and Lester High.

The federal government makes loans to municipalities without interest to conduct such surveys. The loans are repaid only when the municipalities vote a bond issue for improvements resulting from the engineering studies.

The applications, which were sent to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, were completed after the committee met with the City Council.

Representing the committee were Vanderpool, T. H. Scott, Roy Johns, R. D. Kellogg, F. L. Smith, Richard Hale, Ivy Jordan, Conway Crossland, C. M. Strauss, Murray Hudson, Grayson Guthrie, Joe Marx Jr., Jack Masur, Charles E. Brown, O. A. Easterling and S. E. Huey.

2-Year-Old Tot Dies Of Poison At Ferriday

FERRIDAY (Special) — Linda Ellen Marlett, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marlett of Ferriday, died last night after swallowing what a physician termed a "highly toxic" poison. The tot was taken to Concordia General Hospital at 5 p.m. yesterday, about 30 minutes after swallowing a quantity of rust remover.

She was released after treatment, but became ill again and was returned to the hospital where she died about 8 p.m.

Her parents told a doctor at the hospital that she was drinking water and accidentally mixed in a few drops of the rust remover. She swallowed a small portion.

Battle With Bug Leads To Wreck

A battle with a bug set off a three-car accident here yesterday, slightly injuring a Monroe woman.

According to police reports this is what happened: Lorraine M. Beckley, 20, of 215 Vernon St., reported she was driving north on Jackson street about 10:30 a.m. when she began to fight a bug flying around inside her car. When she looked to the rear of the car, she rammed the one parked car and knocked it into another parked vehicle.

Officials reported the woman suffered contusions of the right forearm. Officers said the first vehicle struck was driven by Julius S. Gills, General Electric sales engineer from Alexandria. The second car was driven by R. K. Mersman, St. Louis, Mo.

Both cars were parked at 3903 Jackson St., officers said.

Nikita Gibes At Ike About Propaganda

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev gibed at President Eisenhower and denied that the Soviet Union's suspension of nuclear tests was a propaganda gimmick.

"If Eisenhower really thinks we have stopped atomic and hydrogen bomb tests for propaganda reasons, then why don't he and other Western statesmen try the same propaganda and halt the tests themselves?" he asked.

Khrushchev declared international supervision of explosions actually exists already because nuclear tests cannot be hidden.

The Soviet Union would agree to international supervision of such tests if the West thought that necessary, he added. As usual, he did not go into details of the kind of supervision the Soviet Union would accept.

Speaks
Khrushchev spoke Friday to an estimated 1,500 Hungarians massed in a Budapest Square to observe the 13th anniversary of liberation from Nazi rule.

His platform was the base of a statue of Stalin pulled down by the anti-Soviet revolutionaries in October 1956. From this unusual rostrum he defended the crushing of the revolution by the Soviet army.

"Our enemies howled that the Soviet army suppressed the 'popular revolution,'" he said. "What else could they do? They had to hide the traces, and overt attention from those who led the anti-peoples' push."

Woman Is Found Dead Near Home

HUTCHINSON, KAN. (AP)—Mrs. Frances Carolyn Easterday, 26, who disappeared mysteriously Tuesday, leaving her 3½-year-old son alone, was found Friday, face down in a water-filled ravine.

Her body, clad in a white and yellow cotton house dress, was discovered behind her home. There was nothing to indicate foul play, Dr. G. A. Chickering, County Coroner, said. Mrs. Easterday's clothing was not torn or disarranged. Her shoes were nearby. She clutched a stocking in one hand.

The spot where she lay is about 200 yards back of the house but cannot be seen because of wheat stubble.

Husband Returns
Her husband, Tom Easterday, also 26, a Navy airman stationed at Hutchinson Naval Air Station, returned Thursday night from a training flight to Corpus Christi, Tex., and touched off the search for his wife.

The couple's bewildered little boy, Jeffrey Allan, was found wandering Thursday by a neighbor. "My Mommy and Daddy have left me," he said. The youngster fed himself and the family dogs for two nights with oatmeal and cocoa.

"We were enjoying a normally happy married life," Easterday said. "Frances was homesick when we first came here and hated my Navy life. But recently

The baby was unharmed after 12 hours of flight and hiding with practical nurse Margaret Ann Pfeiffer, 44.

The 5-foot, 95-pound nurse was charged with kidnapping, despite her protestations that Copley Memorial Hospital officials and a welfare worker had told her it was all right to take the child.

Her husband, who arranged the surrender of the nurse and baby, insisted "God knows we didn't want to kidnap the baby. We want it very badly. As soon as

Rebel Leader Plans Battle 'Final Stage'

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba lensed up as a nation of clock watchers Friday night awaiting the fateful stroke of midnight for first signs of open civil war.

Rebel leader Fidel Castro has declared "total, implacable war between the people of Cuba and the tyranny of Batista."

Castro's deadline is 12:01 — one minute past midnight — unless President Fulgencio Batista before then should quit office as Castro demands.

President Batista—set to strike back through the armed forces, the labor unions and courts—awaited the showdown with a confidence that seemed cocky.

Army Pleased

Army chiefs beamed. Their hope is that Castro, who has stuck for 15 months to guerrilla hit-and-run attacks, may finally be drawn into an open fight. They believe he can quickly be wiped out if he risks it.

Informed sources here said the government might soon launch a ground offensive in any case to follow up aerial bombardments of suspected rebel hideouts in the mountains of eastern Cuba.

Through the evening, Havana was outwardly calm.

But there were seething undercurrents and a rash of predictions of bloodshed this Easter weekend. Some rebel sympathizers declared guns and ammunition were stored in houses in nearly every block of Havana and that thousands awaited only Castro's signal to strike. Raiding police seized some arms from caches during the day.

Unrest
The unrest and rising uncertainty hit hard at Havana's multimillion-dollar resort hotels. Their guest lists dwindled to less than 10 per cent of capacity. Hundreds of hotel employees were laid off. Castro ignored a last-minute offer of amnesty by Batista's government to all rebels who down arms. He said his columns already were on the move throughout Oriente Province, on the east end of the island.

"The fight against Batista has entered its final stage," the 31-year-old guerrilla leader said in a statement issued from his hideout in the Sierra Maestra range in Oriente province.

Castro said Tuesday the first stage, aimed at cutting the island's communications and transportation, was beginning. Batista on the same day obtained emergency powers from Congress to

Nutter explained that he was furloughed last July from a nearby industrial plant and hasn't been able to find work since.

Speedy Long In Race For Vacated Slot

BATON ROUGE (AP)—State Sen. Speedy O. Long Friday joined four other candidates seeking the eighth district congressional seat left vacant by the death of Dr. George S. Long.

The Jena lawmaker — 27 when he was chosen in 1956 to represent Winn, Caldwell, LaSalle and Grant parishes — will reach the minimum age of 30 in June, one month before the July 29 Democratic primary.

Other candidates include Richard E. Walker of Pollock, who lost a close race to Rep. Long in 1956; Carl B. Close, former Alexandria mayor; Harold B. McSweeney, Alexandria attorney and member of the State Board of Education; and Mrs. Myrtle Eubanks, Dry Prong peace justice.

Long, no relation to the late Dr. Long, pledged support to "retention of our southern way of life. I despise the punishing tactics used by the Republican administration in Washington to destroy our southern heritage, such as was used in Little Rock . . . and through closing of Fort Polk in Louisiana."

"I have had to work for everything I've ever had or gotten, and I intend to work for this election, and if elected I intend to work for you to stay in office."

"I was elected to the state Senate from the 31st senatorial district in 1956 without the endorsement of any political faction," the young lawmaker said.

Long is married. He is a senior at the Louisiana State University law school. He attended Louisiana College, graduated from Northwestern State College and served 38 months in the Navy.

Local Group Asks For Aid For Surveys

Applications for federal funds to conduct a survey for a proposed capital improvement program were mailed yesterday, according to R. L. Vanderpool, Jr.

The move came as a climax to preliminary work done by the Citizens Committee, a group organized for the purpose of suggesting a capital improvement program here.

Vanderpool, who is chairman of the committee, said the committee through the City of Monroe requested $175,000 for the survey. The committee, in its first public statement made several days ago, announced that it would ask the City Council to call a bond issue after the surveys were made.

According to Vanderpool, purpose of the surveys will be to determine the exact needs of the city.

Possible $6-Million Issue

"While the final amount to be submitted to the voters will naturally have to be decided upon after the engineering work has been completed, a figure of approximately $6,000,000 was generally discussed as a possible amount to begin the badly needed long range program of improving our streets, drainage and sewerage," Vanderpool stated.

He said the Citizens Committee and the City Council were in accord in intending to engage the services of Ford, Bacon and Davis Engineering Corp., S. E. Huey and Co., W. I. Neel and Lester High.

The federal government makes loans to municipalities without interest to conduct such surveys. The loans are repaid only when the municipalities vote a bond issue for improvements resulting from the engineering studies.

The applications, which were sent to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, were completed after the committee met with the City Council.

Representing the committee were Vanderpool, T. H. Scott, Roy Johns, R. D. Kellogg, F. L. Smith, Walter W. Kellogg, M. J. Carbone, Richard Hale, Ivy Jordan, Conway Crossland, C. M. Strauss, Murray Hudson, Grayson Guthrie, Joe Marx Jr., Jack Masur, Charles E. Brown, O. A. Easterling and S. E. Huey.

Nikita Gibes At Ike About Propaganda

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev glibly at President Eisenhower and denied that the Soviet Union's suspension of nuclear tests was a propaganda gimmick.

"If Eisenhower really thinks we have stopped atomic and hydrogen bomb tests for propaganda reasons, then why don't he and other Western statesmen try the same propaganda and halt the tests themselves?" he asked.

Khrushchev declared international supervision of explosions actually exists already because nuclear tests cannot be hidden.

The Soviet Union would agree to international supervision of such tests if the West thought that necessary, he added. As usual, he did not go into details of the kind of supervision the Soviet Union would accept.

Speaks

Khrushchev spoke Friday to an estimated 1,500 Hungarians massed in a Budapest Square to observe the 13th anniversary of liberation from Nazi rule.

His platform was the base of a statue of Stalin pulled down by the anti-Soviet revolutionists in October 1956. From this unusual rostrum he defended the crushing of the revolution by the Soviet army.

"Our enemies howled that the Soviet army suppressed the 'popular revolution,'" he said. "What else could they do? They had to hide the traces, and overt attention from those who led the anti-peoples' putsch."

Woman Is Found Dead Near Home

HUTCHINSON, KAN. (AP)—Mrs. Frances Carolyn Easterday, 26, who disappeared mysteriously Tuesday, leaving her 3½-year-old son alone, was found Friday, face down in a water-filled ravine.

Her body, clad in a white and yellow cotton house dress, was discovered behind her home. There was nothing to indicate foul play, Dr. G. A. Chickering, County Coroner, said. Mrs. Easterday's clothing was not torn or disarranged. Her shoes were nearby. She clutched a stocking in one hand.

The spot where she lay is about 200 yards back of the house but cannot be seen because of wheat stubble.

Husband Returns

Her husband, Tom Easterday, also 26, a Navy airman stationed at Hutchinson Naval Air Station, returned Thursday night from a training flight to Corpus Christi, Tex., and touched off the search for his wife.

The couple's bewildered little boy, Jeffrey Allan, was found wandering Thursday by a neighbor. "My Mommy and Daddy have left me," he said. The youngster fed himself and the family dogs for two nights with oatmeal and cocoa.

"We were enjoying a normally happy married life," Easterday said. "Frances was homesick when we first came here and hated my Navy life. But recently

Nurse Relinquishes Kidnapped Charge

AURORA, Ill. (UP)—A nurse Friday surrendered the 3-week-old girl she had spirited from a hospital ward in the conviction that "God intended me to have this baby."

The baby was unharmed after 12 hours of flight and hiding with practical nurse Margaret Ann Pfeiffer, 44.

The 5-foot, 95-pound nurse was charged with kidnapping, despite her protestations that Copley Memorial Hospital officials and a welfare worker had told her it was all right to take the child.

Her husband, who arranged the surrender of the nurse and baby, insisted "God knows we didn't want to kidnap the baby. We want it very badly. As soon as

Rebel Leader Plans Battle 'Final Stage'

HAVANA (AP) — Cuba tensed up as a nation of clock watchers Friday night awaiting the fateful stroke of midnight for first signs of open civil war.

Rebel leader Fidel Castro has declared "total, implacable war between the people of Cuba and the tyranny of Batista."

Castro's deadline is 12:01 — one minute past midnight — unless President Fulgencio Batista before then should quit office as Castro demands.

President Batista—set to strike back through the armed forces, the labor unions and courts—awaited the showdown with a confidence that seemed cocky.

Army Pleased

Army chiefs beamed. Their hope is that Castro, who has stuck for 15 months to guerrilla hit-and-run attacks, may finally be drawn into an open fight. They believe he can quickly be wiped out if he risks it.

Informed sources here said the government might soon launch a ground offensive in any case to follow up aerial bombardments of suspected rebel hideouts in the mountains of eastern Cuba.

Through the evening, Havana was outwardly calm.

But there were seething undercurrents and a rash of predictions of bloodshed this Easter weekend.

Some rebel sympathizers declared guns and ammunition were stored in houses in nearly every block of Havana and that thousands awaited only Castro's signal to strike. Raiding police seized some arms from caches during the day.

Unrest

The unrest and rising uncertainty hit hard at Havana's multimillion-dollar resort hotels. Their guest lists dwindled to less than 10 per cent of capacity. Hundreds of hotel employees were laid off.

Castro ignored a last-minute offer of amnesty by Batista's government to all rebels who down arms. He said his columns already were on the move through Oriente Province, on the east end of the island.

"The fight against Batista has entered its final stage," the 31-year-old guerrilla leader said in a statement issued from his hideout in the Sierra Maestra range in Oriente province.

Castro said Tuesday the first stage, aimed at cutting the island's communications and transportation, was beginning. Batista on the same day obtained emergency powers from Congress to

Flag Inverted, Man Asks Help

BOOMER, W. Va. (AP)—Harry L. Nutter, jobless since last July 13, flies the American flag upside down in front of his house in this little Fayette County town to call attention to his plight.

"I know it's disrespectful to fly the flag upside down," the 37-year-old World War II veteran said. "I've made a study of its use but something has to be done even if it's wrong."

Nutter explained that he was furloughed last July from a nearby industrial plant and hasn't been able to find work since.

"This is a time of distress. Things are really tough for me and my family," Nutter said. "I wish everyone out of work, who wants to work, would do the same."

Highway Bill Doesn't Force Sign Regulation

WASHINGTON (UP)—The new highway bill would not compel states to regulate billboards along the new 41,000-mile interstate highway system. But it offers two cash incentive plans to persuade them to do so.

Congress approved the bill in final form Thursday. President Eisenhower was expected to sign it in due course.

Sponsors hoped that states—under one or both of the incentive schemes—would curb what they call "billboard blight"—especially along new portions of the interstate system.

That network, first mapped in the 1956 highway bill, is expected to cost some 40 billion dollars over the years. The federal government would pay 90 per cent.

The bill would allow states to spend federal funds to obtain so-called advertising easements under which property owners would agree not to place signs along the routes. Five per cent of the cost of land for new rights-of-way could be spent for this purpose.

It would also offer a bonus at an additional 1/2 of 1 per cent of highway costs—to states which use their constitutional police powers, zoning laws and the like to regulate billboards along rights of way purchased since July, 1956—some 65 to 75 per cent of the total mileage.

States could qualify for these bonus payments by entering into agreements with the secretary of commerce to abide by federal standards. The bonus proposal does not aim at leveling billboards already in place along existing highways which are to be incorporated in the interstate network.

The secretary of commerce would be charged with drafting the federal standards which would apply 660 feet on each side of the right of way. In drafting them, however, the secretary would be required to permit these signs:

—Directional or other official traffic signs.
—Signs advertising adjacent property for sale or lease.
—Certain signs advertising activities being conducted no more than 12 miles away, provided they were consistent with federal standards and regulatory policy.

est at certain hours of day or night, then stop.

Cancer cells apparently lose their clocks, or sense of time. Instead of following a rhythm of controlled growth, they just keep growing.

Intriguing studies of these life clock regulators were described today by Dr. Cyrus P. Barnum Jr. and Dr. Franz Halberg of the University of Minnesota Medical School to science writers on an American Cancer Society tour of research institutions.

They are making beautifully precise studies of cell activity in mice of an inbred strain. These are standardized mice, living very standardized lives of set and unvarying routines. Lights in their houses are turned on at 6 a.m. and off at 6 p.m.

Under this routine, cells of major organs fall into a 24-hour routine. One measure of the rhythm is to see when the cells are most busily growing. Cells grow by dividing into two new cells. This growth can be detected with radioactive atom studies.

Before it divides, a cell must first create double the amount of genetic material it already contains, so there will be enough to form two new cells. Cells begin to make this extra genetic material about eight hours before they actually divide, various scientists find.

Liver cells of the mice begin to do this regularly from midnight to 4 a.m., Barnum and Halberg find. They do the actual dividing or growing about noon. Some regulatory clock of inner or outer influences, or both, controls this rhythm.

The hour of daylight isn't important. In fact, if day and night are reversed, with lights turned on at 6 p.m. and off at 6 a.m., the liver cells after a while begin the genetic study at 4 in the afternoon and divide most busily at midnight, Dr. Barnum said.

The studies are aimed at learning just what controls normal growth. That knowledge could give the clues to discovering what goes wrong in cancer cells, and how to prevent or remedy it, Dr. Barnum says.

Nurse Relinquishes Kidnapped Charge

The little girl from her crib after she finished work at Copley Memorial Hospital shortly before midnight Thursday night.

The nurse slipped from the hospital with the warmly-wrapped baby in her arms. She placed the child beside her on the front seat of her car and drove 37 miles to the home of a friend on the north side of Chicago.

Friday morning, Mrs. Pfeiffer heard a radio broadcast that she was wanted for kidnapping. Although the nurse felt she had done no wrong, she realized she had to "set things right." She telephoned her husband, 26-year-old machinist J. Charles Pfeiffer, in Aurora and she notified Police Chief Donald F. Curran that he was going to Chicago to get his wife.

Roadblock Set Up
Curran, fearful that the couple would try to escape with the child, set up a roadblock on U.S. 66, west of Naperville, Ill., and 14 miles from Aurora. Pfeiffer stopped the car as soon as he saw the waiting policemen. The baby, clad in new-bought clothes, was in his wife's arms. She had just finished giving the little girl her formula.

The baby was taken from the nurse immediately and rushed to the hospital. Doctors there said the infant was in excellent condition. They said this was not surprising, because Mrs. Pfeiffer was a top-rated nurse and had "a wonderful way with children." At police headquarters, Mrs. Pfeiffer told a story of frustrated mother love which, if it did not tally completely with known facts in the case, attested to her personal anguish.

The baby she loved was born last March 16 in the home of Mrs. Darlene Smith, a young divorcee who also has a 3-year-old daughter, Mrs. Smith, unable to care for the child, agreed to put her up for adoption.

Although Mrs. Pfeiffer was not present at the birth, she said "the baby was put into my arms when it was 10 minutes old. They told me to take care of it and I did."

"I always took care of this baby first and I called her Elizabeth Ann. Last night, I knew they were going to take her away to the foundling home and I couldn't let her go."

Over and over, she repeated "God intended me to have this baby."

She called her husband, who was also in the house, and he called Charlie Jolly, a neighbor. Jolly got in his boat, dragged the body out onto the Concordia side and notified authorities.

State Trooper R. C. McGuffey, Catahoula Parish Deputy Sheriff J. W. Adams, Jonesville Town Marshall T. H. Tolar, and Concordia Parish Sheriff Noah Cross investigated. Dr. J. H. Pankey, Concordia Parish coroner, pronounced the death "accidental drowning."

smash the revolt. Since then tension has grown. Some workers have left their jobs, the rebels have distributed arms to civilians, and Batista has mobilized the 38,000 members of Cuba's armed forces.

The hour set by Castro for total revolt marked the end of an ultimatum period. He had demanded that Batista resign by Saturday to save Cuba from further bloodshed.

All government employees and others who continue to work for Batista after midnight will be prosecuted as traitors and criminals when Batista is overthrown, Castro declared.

The bearded guerrilla leader, whose forces grew from an 81-man nucleus that landed on the coast of Oriente province in December 1956, did not mention Prime Minister Gonzalo Guller's offer of amnesty to any rebels who gave up their arms.

Castro said he still plans to call a general strike. He asserted that 50,000 young revolutionaries will pour into city streets on his signal to fight troops and police.

Two rebel columns were spreading destruction around Santiago de Cuba in Oriente, where Castro has won his greatest support. A 1,000-man band led by Castro's brother, Raul, was operating northeast of Santiago, residents of the area said by telephone. The column was expected to turn southwestward to join another band led by rebel Juan Almeida.

Government forces apparently were delaying an assault until the rebels advanced into more open territory, away from their mountain strongholds.

The rebels seemed to be trying to isolate Santiago, but government forces there are strong and a direct attack on them was regarded as unlikely. Most of the city's 250,000 residents apparently support Castro. The Army commander there, Brig. Gen. Albert del Rio Chaviano, has warned that his troops will resort to extreme repression if there is street fighting.

Castro said unprecedented barbarities against civilians have resulted from government air raids on his mountain hideouts. Guller commented in Havana that the government had made no all-out efforts to blast the rebels out of the mountains. He added that 50,000 peasants would have to be evacuated before that could be done. He did not say whether evacuation was planned.

Measures taken by Batista quieted some of the Havana talk about a general strike. Batista has authorized workers to kill anyone who urges them to leave their jobs.

Doomed Negro Barred From Raising Question

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—U. S. District Judge Claude Clayton has ruled that condemned Negro Robert Kee Goldsby is barred from raising the question in court of whether he was denied his civil rights in Mississippi State courts.

Goldsby has been sentenced to death for the 1954 slaying of Mrs. Bryant Nelms of Vaiden. Judge Clayton yesterday said Goldsby's attorneys failed to prove there was a systematic exclusion of any Negro from grand or circuit court juries in which the defendant was convicted.

Woman Spots Body Floating In Black River

(Continued From First Page) Natchez, Miss., emergency rescue squad, the Catahoula Sheriff's Department and State Troopers began the next day, but were halted after a few hours because the area he was believed to be in was so vast.

Mrs. Henry Owens Spann first saw the body yesterday about 2:40 p.m., at approximately the same place it was believed to have gone overboard. She said a tugboat had just passed by, going downriver, when she made the discovery.

She called her husband, who was also in the house, and he called Charlie Jolly, a neighbor. Jolly got in his boat, dragged the body out onto the Concordia side and notified authorities.

State Trooper R. C. McGuffey, Catahoula Parish Deputy Sheriff J. W. Adams, Jonesville Town Marshall T. H. Tolar, and Concordia Parish Sheriff Noah Cross investigated. Dr. J. H. Pankey, Concordia Parish coroner, pronounced the death "accidental drowning."

A resident of Chickasaw, Ala., he is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mary Lou, 9, and Rose Marie, 5.

The body was taken to Young's Funeral Home in Jonesville where arrangements were incomplete last night.

Rebel Leader Plans Battle 'Final Stage'

Since then tension has grown. Some workers have left their jobs, the rebels have distributed arms to civilians, and Batista has mobilized the 38,000 members of Cuba's armed forces.

The hour set by Castro for total revolt marked the end of an ultimatum period. He had demanded that Batista resign by Saturday to save Cuba from further bloodshed.

All government employees and others who continue to work for Batista after midnight will be prosecuted as traitors and criminals when Batista is overthrown, Castro declared.

The bearded guerrilla leader, whose forces grew from an 81-man nucleus that landed on the coast of Oriente province in December 1956, did not mention Prime Minister Gonzalo Gue'll's offer of amnesty to any rebels who gave up their arms.

Castro said he still plans to call a general strike. He asserted that 50,000 young revolutionaries will pour into city streets on his signal to fight troops and police.

Two rebel columns were spreading destruction around Santiago de Cuba in Oriente, where Castro has won his greatest support. A 1,000-man band led by Castro's brother, Raul, was operating northeast of Santiago, residents of the area said by telephone. The column was expected to turn southwestward to join another band led by rebel Juan Almeida.

Government forces apparently were delaying an assault until the rebels advanced into more open territory, away from their mountain strongholds.

The rebels seemed to be trying to isolate Santiago, but government forces there are strong and a direct attack on them was regarded as unlikely.

Most of the city's 250,000 residents apparently support Castro. The Army commander there, Brig. Gen. Albert del Rio Chaviano, has warned that his troops will resort to extreme repression if there is street fighting.

Castro said unprecedented barbarities against civilians have resulted from government air raids on his mountain hideouts. Gue'll commented in Havana that the government had made no all-out efforts to blast the rebels out of the mountains. He added that 50,000 peasants would have to be evacuated before that could be done. He did not say whether evacuation was planned.

Measures taken by Batista quieted some of the Havana talk about a general strike. Batista has authorized workers to kill anyone who urges them to leave their jobs.

Storm Lashed Prayer

By MRS. KURT CARLSEN
Woodbridge, New Jersey

Six years ago the world thrilled to Captain Kurt Carlsen who refused to quit his stricken, wallowing ship, the Flying Enterprise. Here is a behind the scenes story as told by his wife.

Our Christmas joy came to an end abruptly on December 25th, six years ago.

Until then we'd had a happy season in spite of the fact that the children—Sonia, 11, and Karen, 7—and I were all alone. The day before, my husband had sent us a Christmas message from his ship, the Flying Enterprise, and we were content. Shortly after church, however, the telephone rang.

"Have you heard about the storms, Agnes?" a friend asked me.

"No. What storms?"

"In the Atlantic. The Flying Enterprise is in trouble."

I turned on the radio and learned that Kurt was in the worst December storm the North Atlantic had known in 22 years. Waves were 60 feet high. The Flying Enterprise's hull had been damaged. No details. The ship carried 50 passengers and crewmen. That was all.

Friends Came To Help

The word spread rapidly that Kurt was in trouble. Friends came over to our house to see if they could help. Newspaper people began to call. The telephone rang constantly.

Some of the calls I welcomed, like the times friends telephoned to say they were praying for us. It seemed the whole world was joining us in prayer. It gave me a warm feeling, and I was reminded of the Danish expression "Enighed gor staerk," which means "In unity there is strength."

"Enighed gor staerk." I didn't think much about the words again until later that night after my friends had returned to their homes. I was alone, and yet I was not alone. My friends weren't with me; and yet I could feel their support. They had left, and yet I was still united with them and took strength from them.

Almost immediately the feeling of helplessness left me. There was something I could do for Kurt, out there in the storm. I could support him, out there, just as my friends were supporting me.

A Special Prayer

That night I began a special prayer.

"Enighed gor staerk," I prayed. "In unity there is strength, Kurt."

The next morning I asked friends to join me in this support of Kurt and his fellow men aboard the Enterprise.

The storm continued to rage, and the Flying Enterprise began to take water into her number three hold. Kurt sent out an S.O.S.

When the rescue ships arrived, he asked them to come in as close as they could. Then, on December 29, he ordered passengers and crew to abandon ship.

By nightfall there was only Kurt left. The Coast Guard called over to him to jump, too. Kurt's answer immediately became front-page news.

"My duty is with the ship," he said. "I'll stay with her and bring her in. Or I'll watch her go down."

Rooted in Law

Kurt's decision was deeply rooted in maritime law. If the Enterprise were abandoned, but were later salvaged, Kurt's company would have lost all claim to her. If she were never completely abandoned, Kurt's company would always have a claim to her.

Overnight Kurt became a world-known figure. People waited eagerly for news about the storm.

The Enterprise's rudder now stuck helplessly out of the water. She was tossed at will by the waves.

She lost her generators. Kurt was without heat and light. He slept, when he could, cramped up against a bulkhead so he wouldn't be washed overboard. He was always wet, always cold, always in imminent danger of death.

Kurt remained like that for six days. Then, on January 2, the sea calmed. Three hundred miles away, in England, a salvage tug, the Turmoil, decided to make for the Enterprise, to see if she could be towed into port. Hopes rose.

Jumps Aboard

On January 4, the Turmoil reached Kurt and drew up close alongside. A young man named Kenneth Dancy jumped aboard the Enterprise, and together the two men tied a cable onto the stern of the old freighter. The Turmoil began the long slow, awkward trip back to port.

Then, on January 8, when the Turmoil was only 57 miles from port, the headlines said new storms brewing off the coast of England.

Our prayers were not, now, to bring the ship to port, but just to keep the men from harm, and to give Kurt the strength to do what he felt he had to do.

On January 9, fate stepped in to make matters still worse. The tug's towline broke.

Storm Worse

Kurt and Kenneth were once again adrift in the open ocean on a sinking ship. The storm was getting worse. They knew the end was near. They crawled out slowly onto the funnel.

great sucking, slurping sound. The old freighter gave one last shudder.

Kenneth and Kurt jumped. They were in the water only a few moments before the Turmoil picked them up.

Back Home

On January 12, Kurt returned to New York. There were parades for him up Broadway and in our home town of Woodbridge. We were all there, Kurt, Sonia, Karen, and myself.

Hours later we closed the door on the final visitor. We were alone, just the four of us. I fixed a little dinner, and we all sat down. It was our Christmas. Kurt looked up and saw the tears in my eyes.

"There's no need," he said. "We're together now."

"Yes," I said. "We're together."

"Sometimes I did not know where the next strength was to come from," he said. "But it was always there."

"Yes," I said and the tears came again. Enighed gor staerk. It had been our own Christmas miracle.

Pricing Investigations

Federal grand jury probes of new automobile pricing, as proposed by Victor R. Hansen, assistant attorney general, may add to the worries of the automobile industry but are not likely to prove a panacea for the current economic situation.

Hansen, the justice department and the grand jury in Washington are said to be interested "in determining whether there are agreements among area dealers relating to price and the so-called discounts which violate the anti-trust laws."

Hansen said the "dealer pricing plan, employing what is known as 'the price pack,' seems to follow a pattern in several areas.

A senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee which has been looking into auto prices has announced it will resume hearings April 29. Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) said the hearings will be chiefly concerned with "the question of what has happened to the demand for automobiles" and what can be done to reverse the sales slump.

Governmental maneuvering of this kind is not likely to do much toward easing the price situation. A more effective method might be to give the automobile manufacturers and other industries some relief in income taxes so that they would be able to accumulate a better working surplus and thus would be in a better position to convert their manufacturing processes when required.

As a matter of fact, it is hard to imagine how any industry could try harder for sales than the automobile industry has done.

If there has been any conniving by local salesmen to fix prices it has not been apparent to the ordinary observer. On the contrary, there seems to be the keenest kind of competition. In fact, this extremely keen competition, by which sales apparently have been extended beyond their normal levels, may have been the thing that caused the sudden slowdown.

Price-packing, or the custom of asking more for an article than the seller expects to obtain, is as old as trading itself. In any sort of old-fashioned trade, the first asking price is usually more than the lowest amount the seller would take, just as the first offer is usually lower than the buyer would pay. A 10-year-old who wants to trade his jack-knife knows this and will always ask for more than he expects to get, if he is any kind of trader. Even the early American Indians probably asked more wampum for their horses than they expected to get.

Some of our federal laws on trade look two ways at once. They allegedly attempt to curb monopoly and at the same time try to prevent the kind of competition that seeks to undercut the other fellows. All merchants either work competitively or in combination. The government wants them to perform the impossible by doing neither.

The law that will force prices down, if they are to go down, will be the law of supply and demand. That is what is working now and that is what is putting on the pressure.

Top executives of the big three automobile manufacturers were said to have cold-shouldered suggestions that they cut automobile prices as a means of inducing increased buying. It is doubtful if they could cut the prices on the present rolling palaces to any great extent without going into the red.

Increased sales of foreign automobiles in this country may force the prices of cars down but if they do the process will not be particularly pleasant for industry.

If the automobile industry in this country has overproduced or over-sold its present product no amount of federal investigation will help. If that is true, about the only thing that will help will be to convert to various types of supplementary manufacture.

This would offer a potential of hundreds of millions of additional sales.

Tranquilized Cows

In the good old days when milk was straight from the bovine container a favorite slogan was "drink rich, luscious milk from contented cows." The contentment of the cows was supposed to make the milk more palatable and more healthful.

It may seem strange, but in those days about all a cow needed to induce contentment was plenty of good feed, plenty of pure water and a warm barn in the winter time or cool shade in the summer time. Cows in those days were really contented.

Another nice thing about the good old days and the contented cows was the fact that if the cow gave milk that contained five or six per cent butterfat it stayed in the milk and was delivered to the customer. Later, state laws provided that four per cent or three and one-half per cent of butterfat must be left in the milk.

It was about this time that the fad against fat got into full swing and some of the commercial dairies figured they were doing the public a favor by taking out butterfat in excess of three and one-half or four per cent.

Since that time we have known of no circumstances that would tend to make cows less happy. In fact, we were laboring under the impression or delusion that cows were still contented.

Some beef cattle, especially those in big herds, in those days reportedly became somewhat nervous and were disposed to stampede if anything disturbed them but they could be quieted down by singing cowboys. Even the dairy cows enjoyed singing then.

Now look what has happened since the rock 'n' roll singers came into being.

More than 200 cattlemen gathered at Texas Tech College in Lubbock to learn how to keep cows contented by giving them tranquilizing pills. The tranquilizing drugs are being administered to cattle to calm them down and help them gain weight.

This seems to indicate cows are no better than people. Some of them worry when they have nothing to worry about.

Farmers Turn Wrath From Benson To Budget Bureau

About a million and a quarter farmers throughout the nation have temporarily switched their wrath from Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson to President Eisenhower's Bureau of the Budget.

These farmers, who participate in the Agriculture Conservation Program, are facing a $125 million cut in federal payments for practicing conservation on their farms under the program.

Tying Horns On Reuther Hard In Kohler Hearing

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Bad cases make bad law. The Kohler Company of Wisconsin was a poor case on which to try Walter Reuther and his United Auto Workers.

The McClellan Committee looked very shabby in its investigation of "improper activities" in the four-year strike of the Kohler plant by the UAW. Democrats on the Senate committee had the press tables asking, "Where are they?" while Reuther testified. Republicans got nowhere trying to pin a pair of horns on the red, restless, tongue-wagging head of the UAW chief. The investigation was like the launching of an overpublicized, highly-needed, breath-taking missile which fizzles on its pad.

But we have learned in America that one fizzle does not mean total failure. Indeed, we know that more can be learned from a shocking failure than from a smooth success. What our political scientists should do next is to restudy the subject of Labor-Management relations, '58, on the basis of what evolved from this Kohler hearing.

First, we should be as frank about the faults of this company as we are about the union's faults. My information is not personal, since I have never visited the plant. But the McClellan committee staff investigators have brought back accounts of poor working conditions, low wages and a general lack of good human relations between the management and workers. Two ultra-conservative Senators on the committee told me in separate talks that they found it hard to defend private enterprise, as represented by this company, with any conviction.

Next, in evaluating Reuther's testimony, we need to bring in some dredging equipment and remove the tons of sanctimonious blarney and moralizing platitudes with which he saturated the record. Such simple words as "yes" and "no" were as hard to get from Reuther as the first olive in a new bottle. He opened his testimony with a sixty-minute monologue which raised a misty halo around his own head. Reuther-on-Reuther depicted the Labor boss as Democracy's greatest lover and laureate, as a martyr with the drooping generalities of his brow and as the solitary humanitarian of the 20th Century whose heart was big enough to "understand" the working people.

"Throw out this panegyric with its drooping generalities on 'decency' and 'democracy' and Reuther's testimony adds up to a plea of 'guilty,' but with extenuating circumstances, on the charges of Labor violence. Despite his evasions and alibis, it is hard to believe that so much organized rough stuff took place in Sheboygan, Wisconsin, without inspiration and instruction from Detroit, Michigan, the headquarters of UAW and the headquarters of the Labor movement in the United States.

Finally, we should see this Kohler-UAW clash for what it truly is. It is not just the story of an ordinary company. Nor is it merely the story of a ruthless union. This four-year strike was a four-year battle for the control of a strategic hilltop. The company tried to drive away the union, while the union tried to pulverize the company. At this writing the company has won a signal victory. The union is beaten. It is trying to arrange a dignified retreat from the fray which cost the UAW treasury at least $10 million and which leaves Reuther looking like a pretty bedraggled Napoleon.

The pity is, however, that these facts do not shine out bright and clear. They are badly smudged because this was a case in which private ownership was the "bad" guy in the drama, while the trade union guy was "good." Reuther, of course, is not the nonpareil of his own description, but anybody who tries to run down this man out of prejudice is making a mistake and is promoting an untruth. Walter Reuther is a spunky, brainy, attractive leader of men. He runs a union that is antipathetic, almost suspiciously, "clean" and anti-Communist. He has taken the utmost care to keep himself above any taint of venality or disloyalty. He has made himself a Left Wing model of something the Right Wing has not yet matched — a national figure whose hands look clean on the whitest tablecloth and under the most exacting microscope.

None of this means, however, that Senators are wrong when they see something very menacing to American institutions in a man with demagogic instincts and with snowballing power in politics and economics. If such a man were a religious fanatic, a militarist, a racist, or an industrial tycoon, the country would recognize the danger and take warning.

Tomorrow: Sleep and anxiety.

Muscle Fatigue Mrs. E. M. writes: A friend of mine has spells where she is unable to keep her eyes open. There is no pain but the lids feel very tired. Would you have any idea of what this trouble is?

Reply Your friend may have myasthenia gravis. In this disease the muscles of the eyelids become so fatigued after a short period of use the individual cannot keep them open. With adequate rest, fatigue disappears and the cycle then repeats itself. This woman ought to consult a physician because diagnostic tests as well as treatments are available.

Dental Correction Mrs. F. writes: Can overbite be corrected in infancy or should we wait until the tot is older?

Reply Talk to your physician about giving the baby calcium and vitamin D to help his jaw development. Malocclusion may be treated in infancy but most orthodontists prefer to wait until some of the permanent teeth are in before starting treatment of his defect. Eleven years is an ideal age.

EASTER EGGS

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Easter, Passover Come At Same Time

The spring is here for the two great holidays, Passover and Easter. This year, they are being celebrated almost simultaneously. The First Seder of the Jews came on the evening of Good Friday of the Christians.

Thus, in these festivals of resurrection and freedom, the two great religions of Western civilization meet and, as one might say, are jointly remembered by those who worship and who love tradition.

Passover is the festival of freedom. It marks the revolution of the Jewish slaves in Egypt, men, women and children, who under the leadership of Moses crossed from Egypt into the desert and wandering 40 years, molded themselves into a nation that settled in Canaan, in what is now Israel and Jordan, and there established a separate and distinct national existence.

This particular feat was not extraordinary. In those times many entire nations moved from one place to another and were either destroyed in battle or were absorbed by their environment or established themselves as a power. The Hebrews were originally a shepherd people out of Ur of Chaldees who had settled in Canaan, then went to Egypt where they achieved distinction, afterwards suffering humiliation and slavery, and then rebelling under a powerful leader and escaping the wrath of the oppressor.

But this people had something more to their strength. They had an ideal, a belief, a hope. It is that which has kept them alive even to this day when many of their neighbors have disappeared into the limbo of forgotten peoples. This ideal was the belief in God and His Law. So their leader Moses has not been described as a great military chieftain, or an empire-builder or a powerful administrator. Rather he is the Law-giver, the man who went up into the mountain alone and who, having returned, brought with him The Law, the Ten Commandments.

The Five Books of Moses, the Pentateuch, has become not only the law of the Jews but in its moral connotations, the law of the Christians and of Islam as well. The social implications of the Old Testament, when considered in the context of their times, are enormously progressive. They are an index to freedom and to the dignity of man and although centuries pass before men are sufficiently mature to recognize the wisdom of an orderly life, according to God's law, nevertheless the guide is in our possession and we could move in the right direction were there a will for righteous living.

Each century, each generation, we make some progress toward the good life. There are years when the strides are greater than in other years, but we are never together lost, for the Eternal Light never falters.

This even the Russians have learned. They made a cult of Bezhbozhnik, of the godless, but on Easter the churches that remain will be full and during Passover, frightened Jews will say, L'shono Habah B'Jerushalaim, next year in Jerusalem.

Out of the Passover, the holy day of liberty, came Easter, the holy day of Resurrection. And apart from the relationship of Easter to Jesus, the idea of Passover and Easter is not too distant.

Easter teaches that there is no death, that life and hope are eternal. The snow and frost of winter freeze the ground into miserable bleakness. But soon the grass is green even under the snow and crocuses appear and the birds become so very busy. And then come tulips and daffodils and the ferns seem to be pushing up their little, twisted heads and the robins arrive to awaken the morning.

It is spring. What has been last year is this year. The leaves have fallen off the trees and the trees were stark and cold and naked, but now little buds appear and they will soon flower into apple and cherry and all sorts of beautiful blossoms to perfume the air and to remind the world that there is no death, that life is eternal and everlasting, that winter is a prelude to spring.

And on Passover and Easter one thinks of life and death, of freedom and resurrection, and even in these days of the atom bomb and Sputniks, human life is, by God's grace, as it ever was, a struggle for freedom, a hope of eternity. The things that men do hardly influence the rhythm of the Testament, when considered in the counters of department stores. These people are adults and often well educated. They are even members of churches and in good standing in the P-T-A, as well as other civic organizations.

As Twig Is Bent Their thievery often starts in the schools where they are allowed to cheat on examinations by the sins of omission of teachers who ignore the pupils during exams.

I have even had teachers argue with me that cheating students should not be reprimanded lest it injure the developing personality of said crooks!

Earlier this week I showed that experiments even at the university level, proved that over 30 per cent of college students deliberately cheated when put on the so-called "honor" system.

We need to realize the vital necessity of teaching every child a strict moral code so that he will be his own policeman thereafter.

We cannot legislate morality nor hire policemen to force people into lawful behavior.

For when morality is only maintained by a policeman, the people feel free to do as they please whenever that policeman is not on duty.

Instead, we must implant an inexorable conscience in EVERY child's brain so that he will have his own enforcement office with him at all times.

This requires specific "cas method" treatment of moral problems both in public schools as well as Sunday schools.

And ALL children should be in Sunday schools, the Scouts, Cam Fire Girls groups and other moral agencies.

Parents, too, must set a POSITIVE example regarding moral behavior and quit boasting in their own deceit. They can't be white lies or serve liquor at home and expect their youngsters to honor the truth or be sober adults.

"Character," said Dwight J. Mood, "is what you are in the dark."

Pricing Investigations

Federal grand jury probes of new automobile pricing, as proposed by Victor R. Hansen, assistant attorney general, may add to the worries of the automobile industry but are not likely to prove a panacea for the current economic situation.

Hansen, the justice department and the grand jury in Washington are said to be interested "in determining whether there are agreements among area dealers relating to price and the so-called discounts which violate the anti-trust laws."

Hansen said the "dealer pricing plan, employing what is known as 'the price pack,' seems to follow a pattern in several areas.

A senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee which has been looking into auto prices has announced it will resume hearings April 29. Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) said the hearings will be chiefly concerned with "the question of what has happened to the demand for automobiles" and what can be done to reverse the sales slump.

Governmental maneuvering of this kind is not likely to do much toward easing the price situation. A more effective method might be to give the automobile manufacturers and other industries some relief in income taxes so that they would be able to accumulate a better working surplus and thus would be in a better position to convert their manufacturing processes when required.

As a matter of fact, it is hard to imagine how any industry could try harder for sales than the automobile industry has done.

If there has been any conniving by local salesmen to fix prices it has not been apparent to the ordinary observer. On the contrary, there seems to be the keenest kind of competition. In fact, this extremely keen competition, by which sales apparently have been extended beyond their normal levels, may have been the thing that caused the sudden slowdown.

Price-packing, or the custom of asking more for an article than the seller expects to obtain, is as old as trading itself. In any sort of old-fashioned trade, the first asking price is usually more than the lowest amount the seller would take, just as the first offer is usually lower than the buyer would pay. A 10-year-old who wants to trade his jack-knife knows this and will always ask for more than he expects to get, if he is any kind of trader. Even the early American Indians probably asked more wampum for their horses than they expected to get.

Some of our federal laws on trade look two ways at once. They allegedly attempt to curb monopoly and at the same time try to prevent the kind of competition that seeks to undercut the other fellows. All merchants either work competitively or in combination. The government wants them to perform the impossible by doing neither.

The law that will force prices down, if they are to go down, will be the law of supply and demand. That is what is working now and that is what is putting on the pressure.

Top executives of the big three automobile manufacturers were said to have cold-shouldered suggestions that they cut automobile prices as a means of inducing increased buying. It is doubtful if they could cut the prices on the present rolling palaces to any great extent without going into the red.

Increased sales of foreign automobiles in this country may force the prices of cars down but if they do the process will not be particularly pleasant for industry.

If the automobile industry in this country has overproduced or over-sold its present product no amount of federal investigation will help. If that is true, about the only thing that will help will be to convert to various types of supplementary manufacture.

This would offer a potential of hundreds of millions of additional sales.

Tranquilized Cows

In the good old days when milk was straight from the bovine container—a favorite slogan was "drink rich, nourishing milk from contented cows." The contentment of the cows was supposed to make the milk more palatable and more healthful.

It may seem strange, but in those days about all a cow needed to induce contentment was plenty of good feed, plenty of pure water and a warm barn in the winter time or cool shade in the summer time. Cows in those days were really contented.

Another nice thing about the good old days and the contented cows was the fact that if the cow gave milk that contained five or six per cent butterfat it stayed in the milk and was delivered to the customer. Later, state laws provided that four per cent or three and one-half per cent of butterfat must be left in the milk.

It was about this time that the fad against fat got into full swing and some of the commercial dairies figured they were doing the public a favor by taking out butterfat in excess of three and one-half or four per cent.

Since that time we have known of no circumstances that would tend to make cows less happy. In fact, we were laboring under the impression or delusion that cows were still contented.

Some beef cattle, especially those in big herds, in those days reportedly became somewhat nervous and were disposed to stampede if anything disturbed them but they could be quieted down by singing cowboys. Even the dairy cows enjoyed singing then.

Now look what has happened since the rock 'n' roll singers came into being.

More than 200 cattlemen gathered at Texas Tech College in Lubbock to learn how to keep cows contented by giving them tranquilizing pills. The tranquilizing drugs are being administered to cattle to calm them down and help them gain weight.

This seems to indicate cows are no better than people. Some of them worry when they have nothing to worry about.

DR. CRANE SAYS

Store Profits Cut When People Steal

Notice the "butter thief" mentioned below. Then multiply this case by at least 1,000,000 and you can realize why retail merchants have a hard time making even a modest profit. When thousands of school teachers cheat on their own graduate course exams, what can we expect? "If the blind lead the blind, they both fall into the pit," says the Bible.

CASE X-372: Bob H., aged 50, is a neighbor of mine here in Chicago.

"Dr. Crane, yesterday I was shopping at the big super market," he began, "and saw one reason why stores fail to make their proper profit.

"For an attractive looking woman ahead of me deftly opened her big purse and dropped two sticks of butter therein.

"She thus got away with a half pound of butter, for when she checked out at the cashier's counter, she simply let her other packages be rung up on the cash register, but said nothing about the butter in her purse.

"I suppose this sort of petty thievery goes on widely, don't you think?"

Cheating Americans Yes, it is shocking how many supposedly respectable Americans have logic - tight compartments within their consciences.

They may be very honorable in many respects, yet violate other laws with out any sense of shame.

And I am not referring to pathological thieves like the kleptomaniac.

When my father was a grocer at Ft. Wayne, Indiana, the wife of one of the leading judges would come into the store.

She would furtively hide small cans of costly imported items in the various pockets of her coat or slip them into her purse.

The clerks knew about her case, so they simply watched her like a hawk and then billed her husband for the stolen goods.

He was aware of the situation and had asked them simply to charge the pilfered cans to his account and he would gladly pay the bill.

But literally millions of Americans who are not kleptomaniacs, still take merchandise from grocery stores, drug stores and the counters of department stores.

These people are adults and often well educated. They are even members of churches and in good standing in the P.T.A., as well as other civic organizations.

As Twig Is Bent

Their thievery often starts in the schools where they are allowed to cheat on examinations by the sins of omission of teachers who ignore the pupils during exams.

I have even had teachers argue with me that cheating students should not be reprimanded lest it injure the developing personality of said crooks!

Earlier this week I showed that experiments even at the university level, proved that over 30 per cent of college students deliberately cheated when put on the so-called "honor" system.

For when morality is only maintained by a policeman, the people feel free to rob and steal whenever that policeman is not on duty.

Instead, we must implant an inextinguishable conscience in EVERY child's brain so that he will then have his own enforcement officer with him at all times.

This requires specific "case method" treatment of moral problems both in public schools as well as Sunday schools.

And ALL children should be in Sunday schools, the Scouts, Camp Fire Girls groups and other moral agencies.

Parents, too, must set a POSITIVE example regarding moral behavior and quit boasting of their own deceit. They can't tell white lies or serve liquor at home and expect their youngsters to honor the truth or be sober auto drivers.

IN JERUSALEM

Christian Hymns Great Holy Day

JERUSALEM (AP) — There were Christian hymns for Good Friday, Moslem prayers and Jewish feasts in this ancient, holy city Friday. And its narrow streets were jammed with thousands of pilgrims.

The mixture of religious observances was the result of the unusual coincidence of the Christian Easter, the month of Ramadan when Moslems fast from dawn to dusk, and the week of the Jewish Passover commemorating escape from Egyptian slavery.

Jerusalem was filled to overflowing with pilgrims and tourists — Christian, Moslem and Jew. Several hundred Christian visitors and Israeli residents crossed from the Israeli side of the border into old Jerusalem this morning for the Good Friday observances and the Easter Services Sunday.

5,000 Pilgrims
About 5,000 pilgrims from a dozen nations were gathered in the old city where Jesus was tried and condemned by Pontius Pilate. Carrying heavy crosses, they then proceeded along the route to the scene of the Crucifixion, stopping at each of the 14 stations along the way for sermons and hymns.

As they entered the courtyard of the church of the Holy Sepulchre, loudspeakers from the Mosque of Omar opposite broadcast cries for the Moslem's Friday prayers.

The nearby dome of the rock, once the sacred altar of the temple from which Jesus drove the moneychangers, is supposed to mark the spot where the prophet Mohammed ascended into heaven on horseback.

Seder, the feast which opened the Jewish Passover after sundown, this year drew many visitors who wished to attend the 10th such observance since re-establishment of the Jewish state.

State High School Literary Rally Set

BATON ROUGE (Special) — More than 6,000 high school students from throughout the state are expected to compete in the annual Louisiana State High School Literary Rally to be held April 11-13 on the Louisiana State University campus.

The rally, sponsored by the LSU College of Education and the Division of High School Relations, will include contests in debating, literary subjects, speech, and music.

Clyde L. Madden, director of high school relations at LSU, will serve as secretary and general coordinator for the event. Rally headquarters will be in the office of the Division of High School Relations in Peabody Hall.

High schools will be divided into four divisions for rally rating: "AAA-AA" schools with an enrollment of 175 or more boys; "A" schools with from 100-174 boys; "B" schools with 46-99 boys; and "C" schools, 45 boys or less.

Trophies Awarded
Trophies will be awarded, in each major division, to the schools having the highest total of points in literary, music and speech. LSU scholarships will be awarded to first place winners in literary events and to those who rate superior in music and speech events. The scholarships entitle the holder to $30 exemption from University fees each year.

For judging the debate events, larger schools will be grouped into one division, and smaller ones in another. In each of these divisions, boys and girls will be judged separately. A trophy will be awarded to the top-ranking boy and girl in each of the two major divisions.

Individual dates of the major events of the rally and the LSU faculty member in charge of each are as follows: debating, Friday (April 11); Dr. Waldo W. Braden, professor of speech; literary subjects, Saturday (April 12); Mr. Madden; speech, Friday and Saturday, Dr. Francine Merrill, associate professor of speech; and music, Saturday, Miss Lida Schriener, associate professor of music.

The annual Louisiana Veterans of Foreign Wars scholarship essay contest, limited to the highest ranking senior from each high school in the state, will be judged in conjunction with the rally. The winner will be awarded a $1,000 scholarship annually while he is attending the school of his choice.

INTERNATIONAL AUTO SHOW

Foreign Cars Will Predominate Field

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign cars, from the scooter type to the most luxurious models, will predominate at the week-long International Automobile Show opening Saturday at the Coliseum.

England, France, Germany, Italy and Czechoslovakia will be represented.

American companies have some of their cars on display, too. Ford, Buick, American Motors, Chrysler and Studebaker-Packard are prominent.

Studebaker-Packard has a wheel-less car on display, offered as its conception of future traveling on roads or in the air. The company says the vehicle will get power "from ionic beams emanating from a greater central source." It's called the Aeronaut.

Most expensive car is the Rolls Royce "Silver Wraith," at $22,950. It comes with picnic equipment, an electric coffee maker, a butane gas burner, a wash basin and a supply of water. Also glasses.

Publicity agents for the show say "for the devoted executive a dictating machine can also be completely integrated into the car's interior." However, there's plenty of room for a secretary.

Volkswagen is displaying "The Camper," which shows what can be done with the typical Volkswagen delivery truck body. This has a living room that can be transformed into a bedroom with sleeping space for two. The driving department becomes a child's bedroom. There's also a refrigerator and a gas burner.

Three Observances On This Weekend
Associated Press News Analyst By a rare calendar coincidence, three of the world's great religious observances coincide this weekend.

All over the world, followers of One God celebrate great events in their histories — Christians, Jews and Moslems.

The Jews, at Passover, commemorate their delivery from slavery in Egypt.

Moslems fast in their ancient Ramadan tradition.

Christians celebrate the beautiful belief, in a God who sent his only son to bear the tortures of man, and as a man to be recalled to eternal life, to judge the quick and the dead.

All these followers have one objective — to foster goodness.

Yet Jerusalem, the great center of their devotion, is divided. Jews celebrate on one side of a no man's land through the city. Moslems and Christians approach the great shrines from the other side.

Up from Amman they come, through the lands of Jericho and the valley of the Dead Sea, through the flower-clad hills of the times of Joshua, Mohammed and of Christ.

They come separately. They do not enter no man's land. For there, standing across the Holy Land, is the great barrier of all faiths — hate.

The designation allows owners of homes or business damaged or destroyed in the storm to apply for reconstruction or rehabilitation loans at 3 per cent interest.

Loan applications may be filed at the Small Business Administration office, 1000 Main St., Dallas.

HALT 'MEDICINE SHOW'

Alcorn Implores People To Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Meade Alcorn, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said Friday the Easter recess will give the people a chance to demand that the Democrats "halt their legislative medicine show" in Congress.

The people, Alcorn said in a statement, should call on Democratic legislators to get to work promptly on the recession cures proposed by the Eisenhower Administration.

"The country," he continued, "has had enough of promoted pessimism, meaningless resolutions and talk of old New Deal spending boondoggles which would have no immediate effect on jobs but would have us toward bankruptcy in the years ahead."

Done Its Part
Alcorn said the administration has done its part by taking 29 executive actions. He added it has submitted more legislative recommendations, including more than 20 major proposals aimed at stimulating the economy.

"These," he said, "have been ignored by the Democratic congressional leadership which seems more interested in concocting a phony political pitch for the fall elections than in the general welfare."

"The recess offers Democrats a chance to learn at first hand that the American people want the recession handled sensibly as an economic problem — not a political matter."

Alcorn said Democrats will be asked by the voters how they can sincerely pretend to the roles of 1938 recession fighters against the background of their budget-cutting spree of 1957.

Will Be Asked
"They also will be asked," he continued, "how they can claim economic foresight on the basis of their frenzied spending plans thrown together in late March — some six months after the administration stated its antirecession program."

Alcorn cited as an example of what he called "Democrat panic without regard either for jobs or the taxpayer" an attempt by Democrats this week to rush through a billion-dollar loan program for community public works, a bill he said could not affect employment for months.

"Thus unveiled for all the nation to see," he said, "was the majority leadership's technique — grab headlines first. Think later!"

In contrast, he said, the Democrats have deliberately stalled the administration's plan for a two-billion-dollar program of post-office building and modernization. He said this plan would affect 12,000 communities and would begin generating jobs and investments within 30 days.

Policeman Cited For Great Work
SAN ANTONIO (UP) — A teen-aged looking 25-year-old policeman Friday was commended for service beyond the call of duty, while working as an undercover narcotics agent at Odessa High School.

Patrolman James A. Cuellar of San Antonio enrolled at Odessa high school where he worked with state narcotics agents from Feb. 16 to March 16.

Joe S. Fletcher, deputy director of the Department of Public Safety, said in a letter to San Antonio Police Chief George Bichsel that Cuellar went far beyond the call of duty. Cuellar obtained evidence used to break up a narcotics ring in Ector county. Five felony narcotics were filed as a result of the investigation.

Cuellar has been on the San Antonio police force for the past 18 months and worked as an undercover narcotics agent here also.

IN JERUSALEM

Christian Hymns Great Holy Day

JERUSALEM (AP) — There were Christian hymns for Good Friday, Moslem prayers and Jewish feasts in this ancient, holy city Friday. And its narrow streets were jammed with thousands of pilgrims.

The mixture of religious observances was the result of the unusual coincidence of the Christian Easter, the month of Ramadan when Moslems fast from dawn to dusk, and the week of the Jewish Passover commemorating escape from Egyptian slavery.

Jerusalem was filled to overflowing with pilgrims and tourists — Christian, Moslem and Jew.

Several hundred Christian visitors and Israeli residents crossed from the Israeli side of the border into old Jerusalem this morning for the Good Friday observances and the Easter Services Sunday.

5,000 Pilgrims

About 5,000 pilgrims from a dozen nations were gathered in the old city where Jesus was tried and condemned by Pontius Pilate. Carrying heavy crosses, they then proceeded along the route to the scene of the Crucifixion, stopping at each of the 14 stations along the way for sermons and hymns.

As they entered the courtyard of the church of the Holy Sepulchre, loudspeakers from the Mosque of Omar opposite broadcast cries for the Moslem's Friday prayers.

The nearby dome of the rock, once the sacred altar of the temple from which Jesus drove the moneychangers, is supposed to mark the spot where the prophet Mohammed ascended into heaven on horseback.

Seder, the feast which opened the Jewish Passover after sundown, this year drew many visitors who wished to attend the 10th such observance since re-establishment of the Jewish state.

On Monday the Jewish festival will include a procession to the summit of Mt. Zion and King

MASTERS TOURNAMENT

Venturi Keeps One-Stroke Lead In Great Comeback

By HUGH FULLERTON JR. AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ken Venturi, an indomitable scrapper, staged an almost unbelievable comeback at Augusta National Friday and retained his one-stroke lead at the halfway point of the 22nd Masters Golf Tournament.

Venturi, after using up 40 strokes on a first nine that was as wretched as the Georgia weather, came back with birdies on the last three holes and a four-under par 32. That gave him even par 72 for the day and a 36-hole total of 140.

But Ken's brilliant performance couldn't dim the lustre of his playing partner, the irrepressible amateur Billy Joe Patton, who fired a second round of 69 and tied for second place at 141 with Pat-Ex-1957 champion Chick Harbert.

Between them, Venturi and Patton have been responsible for two of the greatest amateur feats in Masters history. Friday they both lived up to the billing they gained when Billy Joe trailed Sam Snead and Ben Hogan by only a stroke in the hectic 1954 Masters and when Venturi lost by a stroke to Jackie Burke in 1956.

The results on a miserably wet, windy day left the 1958 Masters as a wide open championship which any one of about a dozen players could win.

Tied for fourth place, two strokes off the pace, were Stan Leonard, 41-year-old Canadian pro who has a lock on Canada's PGA championship, and silver-haired Bo Wininger, who plays from Odessa, Tex., Maxwell's hometown.

Bracketed at 143 were Sam Snead and Cary Middlecott, both former winners of the Masters. Between them, Venturi and Patton have been responsible for two of the greatest amateur feats in Masters history. Friday they both lived up to the billing they gained when Billy Joe trailed Sam Snead and Ben Hogan by only a stroke in the hectic 1954 Masters and when Venturi lost by a stroke to Jackie Burke in 1956.

Some of the best failed to make the final 36 holes as the field was slashed about in half for the final 36 holes. Out of the running were Burke, U.S. Open champion Dick Mayer, amateur champion Hillman Robbins, Mexico's Robert de Vicenzo and Japan's Koichi Ono, among others.

Ben Hogan, one of the all-time greats who missed the cutoff when it was first instituted last year, barely made the grade with a 72-77-149.

Forty-three players who made 36 hole totals of 149 or better survived the cutoff. There were just 86 starters in this year's Masters, due to tightened eligibility requirements. Only the low 40 and ties for 40th place were permitted to continue.

Gasping and on the ropes at the nine-hole turn, Venturi told himself, "I'd better get up and get on going or I'll look silly with another 80." And that's just what he did.

It was two years ago that the young San Francisco star, still an amateur then, led the Masters for three rounds only to blow to an 80 on the final and lose to Burke.

He had taken an unfortunate double-bogey seven on the long eighth hole and three-putted the ninth before he settled down.

Then at the 10th, the tall, good-looking Californian plunked in a 15-foot birdie putt. He got another bird at the 13th with a near-perfect wedge shot after playing safe short of the creek. But he three-putted the 14th and still was three over par.

That was when things began to happen. Ken barely missed a six-footer on the 15th green, then holed putts of five and eight feet for birdies on the next two greens.

At the 16th, with some 7,500 spectators looking on breathlessly, he calmly knocked in a 20 footer for a birdie three that meant the lead.

Patton, no less amazing, had a chance to tie Venturi at the last hole. Out in 34 after successive birdies on the 7th, 8th and 9th holes, Billy Joe picked up another stroke at the 15th, then lost one at the short 16th. There he hit his tee shot in the pond and then put his next four feet from the pin. He holed a 30-foot chip from off the 17th green for a bird and was even with Venturi at that stage.

On the 18th, Patton's approach was just short of the green and his chip stopped some ten feet short of the pin. He took two putts for his 69.

In contrast to Thursday's par-shattering performance — probably an all-time low for Augusta National — only eight players broke par Friday. In addition to Patton's 69 and the two 70s, Ford, Snead, Finsterwald, Billy Casper and Al Mengerst shot 71s.

48 Players Receive Letters At Mangham

MANGHAM, La. (Special) — Forty-eight athletes received letters here Thursday night at the annual Mangham High School athletic banquet.

The athletes, participants in football, girls and boys basketball, track and baseball, were awarded letters and jackets by Coaches Armed Matthews, Embury Pickett and Janelle Brashier. Also honored were the cheerleaders.

Jack Clayton, head football coach at Northwestern, gave the evening's principal address, pointing out that the losing coach is the one that needs support, not the winner.

"The heart of a good team is the players, coaches and fans all working together," Clayton said. J. J. "Buck" Hollis was the toastmaster.

Letter winners: Rosalyn Thames, Cornelia Walters, Peggy Arrant, Johnnie Free, Frances Johns, Mary Alice Nobile, Carolyn Thompson, Jean Ching, Kathryn Etier, Charlotte Nobles, Dixie Wilson, Carol Smith and cheerleaders Ann Etier, Marlyn Lyles and Kay Stowell.

Roger Boughton, Edgar Johns, Scott Harrell, Willie Froust, Ed Thompson, Tom Hendrix, James Hendrix, Sylvester Johns, Herman Grant, John Douciere, Joe Joyner, John Ben Boughton, Dennis Evans, Ellis Brown, Charles O. Jones, Noble Ellington, Wilfred Burgess and William Garsee.

Jerry Smith, J. C. Clingford, Jerry Templeton, Wayne Owens, O. J. Oliveaux, Billy Lowery, Billy Laird, Earl Oliveaux, David Thomson, James Hutson, Warren Nobles, Charles Mercer, Melvin Seabry, Paul Etier, Claude Mercer, Stanley Mercer, Bud Thames and Don Adams.

Some of the best failed to make the final 36 holes as the field was slashed about in half for the final 36 holes. Out of the running were Burke, U.S. Open champion Dick Mayer, amateur champion Hillman Robbins, Mexico's Robert de Vicenzo and Japan's Koichi Ono, among others.

Ben Hogan, one of the all-time greats who missed the cutoff when it was first instituted last year, barely made the grade with a 72-77-149.

Forty-three players who made 36 hole totals of 149 or better survived the cutoff. There were just 86 starters in this year's Masters, due to tightened eligibility requirements. Only the low 40 and ties for 40th place were permitted to continue.

Gasping and on the ropes at the nine-hole turn, Venturi told himself, "I'd better get up and get on going or I'll look silly with another 80." And that's just what he did.

It was two years ago that the young San Francisco star, still an amateur then, led the Masters for three rounds only to blow to an 80 on the final and lose to Burke.

He had taken an unfortunate double-bogey seven on the long eighth hole and three-putted the ninth before he settled down.

Then at the 10th, the tall, good-looking Californian plunked in a 15-foot birdie putt. He got another bird at the 13th with a near-perfect wedge shot after playing safe short of the creek. But he three-putted the 14th and still was three over par.

That was when things began to happen. Ken barely missed a six-footer on the 15th green, then holed putts of five and eight feet for birdies on the next two greens.

At the 16th, with some 7,500 spectators looking on breathlessly, he calmly knocked in a 20 footer for a birdie three that meant the lead.

Patton, no less amazing, had a chance to tie Venturi at the last hole. Out in 34 after successive birdies on the 7th, 8th and 9th holes, Billy Joe picked up another stroke at the 15th, then lost one at the short 16th. There he hit his tee shot in the pond and then put his next four feet from the pin. He holed a 30-foot chip from off the 17th green for a bird and was even with Venturi at that stage.

On the 18th, Patton's approach was just short of the green and his chip stopped some ten feet short of the pin. He took two putts for his 69.

Indian Baseballers Outhit But Top Southwestern, 9-8

PONCHATOULA, La. (Special) — The Southeastern Baseball Tourney — Northeast got lots of mileage out of only six hits for a 9-8 triumph over Southwestern of Memphis Jinks and Jay Gross but North here yesterday in the second day east bunched their blows for a run in the first, four in the second and four more in the fourth. Southwestern aided the Northeast attack with three errors in the seven inning tilt.

Third baseman Gary Huckyaby was the big stickman for George Luffey's Indians with three hits in four trips to drive in three runs.

Northeast will play Mississippi State, perennial power in Southeastern Conference baseball, tomorrow with veteran righthander Lyle Dorsey to start on the mound for the Indians. State whipped Northern Illinois, 14-6, yesterday.

Huey Jinks started for Northeast yesterday and went five innings. After Southwestern led off the sixth with two straight hits, left-hander Jay Gross came in to finish.

The victory was the sixth of the season for Northeast against two ties and three losses. The Indians tied Northern Illinois, 5-5, Thursday in a game called because of darkness.

Two golf contests slated for the week will put the Canine linksters playing host to Quincy College of Illinois on Thursday and Tulane University on Saturday.

Two baseball frays on the home field will put Tech up against Quincy College on Thursday and Northeast Louisiana on Saturday.

In between those two tilts the Bulldogs will move over to Monroe for a Friday afternoon battle with the Northeast Indians.

The Tech trackmen, who competed in the Southwest Recreation Meet and Florida Relays, have defeated Ouachita College in the only dual action to date. In the Southwest Recreation Meet Tech can up against East Texas and found the Texans to be especially strong in the hurdles and sprints.

Howard Payne has good distance runners while Oklahoma Baptist is expected to be tough in the relays.

In the only tennis action so far this spring, the Canine netters lost a 0-7 match to East Texas State's strong team at Ruston on March 14. Tech's golfers have lost two and won one this season. The Bulldogs defeated Ouachita College and dropped two tilts to McNeese State.

Tech's baseball team will take a 4-2 won-loss mark into the Quincy fray on Thursday. In non-conference competition the Canine diamond crew defeated Ouachita College in two battles and split a two-game series with Southern Illinois University. In three Gulf States Conference games the Techmen lost in the GSC opener to Southeastern Louisiana and split a doubleheader with Northwestern Louisiana.

The fate of the proposed lights for the Forsythe Park tennis courts will be decided by the first of next week. H. W. McSherry, commissioner of finance and utilities, said last night.

McSherry said the cost of the proposed lighting system has not been determined yet but an estimate should be forthcoming by the first of the week.

"We're still kicking it around but we should know by the first of the week positively," McSherry said.

McSherry said earlier this week, after conferring with Tom Underwood, Utilities Commission manager, that the lights would be installed if the cost was not too high. Cost of lighting two of the courts has been estimated around $900.

A coin meter would be installed to regulate the use of the lights. McSherry is also contemplating laying a concrete or blacktop from the edge of the courts to the backstop and repairing the backstops.

Rebs Beat Tribe With Haile, 7-6

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Relief pitcher Ronnie Haile of the West Monroe Rebels pitched and batted his Reb mates to a 7-6 victory over Fair Park's state triple-A baseball champions here yesterday afternoon in the opening conference game of the season for both clubs.

It was Fair Park's first defeat in nine games this spring. It was West Monroe's second win in four starts.

Haile, who played Teener ball for Winstboro last year, entered the game in the second inning after two were out and two earlier West Monroe hurlers had been tagged for three hits and handed the Indians a 5-2 lead. The son of a West Monroe grocer held Fair Park to one hit and one run the rest of the way, but the Rebs were still trailing 6-5 when they entered the final frame.

West Monroe loaded the bases in the final inning with the pitcher due to bat. Coach Dan McClure elected to ride with Haile, win or lose, and let his pitcher bat for himself in the crucial situation. Haile promptly poled a two-run single that brought in the tying and winning runs. He put the Tribesmen away in their half of the seventh to earn the victory.

Robert Perkins, Shelby Aulds, and Joe Ford led a nine-hit attack for West Monroe with two hits apiece, one of Perkins' blows going for a triple. Paul Labenne got three hits for Fair Park, one a double.

Fair Park used two pitchers, Ronnie Ruth and Steve Barrett, the latter the loser. Harry Boyd and Garland Webb also pitched for West Monroe.

Box score:

West Monroe 155, Fair Park 155.

Gavilan took another step on what he hopes is the road back to title contention by the simple expedient of landing offener and more telling blows in the nationally televised fight.

The 32-year-old Cuban belied his age as he kept the pressure on the rugged Jones with slashing bolo punches in this third meeting of the two veteran campaigners.

Gavilan won over Tiger back in 1953 and lost to him last February at Miami, Fla.

The two judges, Jimmy Mina and Nate Lopinson scored Gavilan the winner, Mina 47-44, and Lopinson 47-43. Referee Joe Sweeney awarded Jones the decision 46-44. The Associated Press scored it for Gavilan 49-41.

Gavilan appeared in excellent condition as he moved lively around the ring picking Jones' defense apart with a hammering body attack to earn the rubber match in the series between the two.

Neither man was marked although Gavilan twice hurt the New York puncher with whistling bolos, one in the fourth and the other in the sixth round, both to the chin.

Gavilan, who picked up his 106th victory against 29 defeats and six draws since turning pro in 1943, may have qualified for a shot at Garnett "Sugar" Hart, the National Boxing Assn.'s fourth-ranking welterweight.

Promoter Herman Taylor, who did not announce the obviously small crowd and gate for this Good Friday show, had promised the Cuban Keed a bout with the promising Hart if he could take Jones.

Gavilan started slowly but neither man did much damage in the first round. Jones landed the best early punch, a sneaky right to the Cuban's chin.

Gavilan seemed to catch fire early in the second round and hit low. From this point on he concentrated on a slashing body attack, occasionally whipping a solid right hand to Jones' chin. Jones' best work was in close and with a short, chopping right with which he occasionally landed on Gavilan's jaw.

The defeat for Jones was his 22nd against 45 victories and four draws.

MASTERS TOURNAMENT

Venturi Keeps One-Stroke Lead In Great Comeback

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Ken Venturi, an indomitable scrapper, staged an almost unbelievable comeback at Augusta National Friday and retained his one-stroke lead at the half way point of the 22nd Masters Golf Tournament.

Venturi, after using up 40 strokes on a first nine that was as wretched as the Georgia weather, came back with birdies on the last three holes and a four-under par 32. That gave him even par 72 for the day and a 36-hole total of 140.

But Ken's brilliant performance couldn't dim the lustre of his playing partner, the irrepressible amateur Billy Joe Patton, who fired a second round of 69 and tied for second place at 141 with Texas pro Billy Maxwell.

Between them, Venturi and Patton have been responsible for two of the greatest amateur feats in Masters history. Friday they both lived up to the billing they gained when Billy Joe trailed Sam Snead and Ben Hogan by only a stroke in the hectic 1954 Masters and when Venturi lost by a stroke to Jackie Burke in 1956.

The results on a miserably wet, windy day left the 1958 Masters as a wide open championship which any one of about a dozen players could win.

Tied for fourth place, two strokes off the pace, were Stan Leonard, 41-year-old Canadian pro who has a lock on Canada's PGA championship, and silver-haired Bo Wininger, who plays from Odessa, Tex., Maxwell's home town.

Bracketed at 143 were Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff, both former winners of the Masters, ex-PGA champion Chick Harbert and Art Wall Jr., Arnold Palmer and Dow Finsterwald, representing the younger generation of pros.

Maxwell and Leonard shot 70s on the kind of day when sub par scores were exceedingly scarce. Finsterwald had a 71, a score matched by defending champion Doug Ford. With a 145 total, Ford still wasn't entirely out of the running.

The big 6,980-yard, par 36-36-72 Augusta National course was entirely different from the comparatively easy layout that saw par broken 17 times on the first round. Softened by rain which didn't end until about noon, swept by a bone chilling wind that dropped temperatures into the upper 40s and with the pins placed in inaccessible locations, it was a course to challenge the greatest players.

Some of the best failed to make the final 36 holes as the field was slashed about in half for the final 36 holes. Out of the running were Burke, U.S. Open champion Dick Mayer, amateur champion Hillman Robbins, Mexico's Robert de Vicenzo and Japan's Koichi Ono, among others.

Ben Hogan, one of the all-time greats who missed the cutoff when it was first instituted last year, barely made the grade with a 72-77-149.

Forty-three players who made 36 hole totals of 149 or better survived the cutoff. There were just 86 starters in this year's Masters, due to tightened eligibility requirements. Only the low 40 and ties for 40th place were permitted to continue.

Gasping and on the ropes at the nine-hole turn, Venturi told himself, "I'd better get up and get going or I'll look silly with another 80." And that's just what he did.

But he three-putted the 14th and still was three over par.

That was when things began to happen. Ken barely missed a six-footer on the 15th green, then holed putts of five and eight feet for birdies on the next two greens. At the 18th, with some 7,500 spectators looking on breathlessly, he calmly knocked in a 20 footer for a birdie three that meant the lead.

Patton, no less amazing, had a chance to tie the Venturi at the last hole. Out in 34 after successive birdies on the 7th, 8th and 9th holes, Billy Joe picked up another stroke at the 15th, then lost one at the short 16th. There he hit his tee shot in the pond and then put his next four feet from the pin. He holed a 30-foot chip from off the 17th green for a bird and was even with Venturi at that stage.

On the 18th, Patton's approach was just short of the green and his chip stopped some ten feet short of the pin. He took two putts for his 69.

In contrast to Thursday's shattering performance, probably an all-time low for Augusta National — only eight players broke par Friday. In addition to Patton's 69 and the two 70s, Ford, Snead, Finsterwald, Billy Casper and Al Mengert shot 71s.

Order of finish of qualifiers after 36 holes:

Winnfield's Fighters Win Four Of Seven

Winnfield boxers nosed out West Monroe, 4 to 3, in matches at the Ouachita Valley Fair Grounds Thursday night, and Joe Knight, operator of Joe's Gym of West Monroe, last night said his boys will fight in Bastrop next Thursday, come up with another home day a week later, and then appear on an amateur card in Shreveport.

CLAYTON SPEAKS

48 Players Receive Letters At Mangham

MANGHAM, La. (Special) — Forty-eight athletes received letters here Thursday night at the annual Mangham High School athletic banquet.

The athletes, participants in football, girls and boys basketball, track and baseball, were awarded letters and jackets by Coaches Armed Matthews, Embry Pickett and Janelle Brashier. Also honored were the cheerleaders.

Jack Clayton, head football coach at Northwestern, gave the evening's principal address, pointing out that the losing coach is the one that needs support, not the winner.

"The heart of a good team is the players, coaches and fans all working together," Clayton said. J. J. "Buck" Hollis was the toastmaster.

Letter winners:
Rosalyn Thames, Cornelia Wal-

Marioneaux.

Independent — Ray Garner, Gary Welch, Jerry Franklin, Duane Franklin, David Smith, Billy Rayborne, Mack Merrill, Billy Wilson, and Marshall Livingston.

Loyola Plans To Screen 3 More Coaches

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Loyola of the South athletic officials plan to interview three more candidates in their search for a basketball coach.

The three, who will be brought here to meet with the school's athletic board, are Charley Wolf, head coach at Villa Madonna, Covington, Ky.; Bryan McCall, head coach at Willoughby High in Cleveland, Ohio, and Henry Kuzma of Steubenville, Ohio, College.

Hank Raymonds of Christian Brothers College, Memphis, Tenn. met with the board Thursday and expressed interest in the job.

Loyola is seeking a replacement for Coach Jim Harding, who resigned after only one season to apply for a similar post at Marquette.

Athletics Farm Out Tsitouris, Harry Taylor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A sore elbow Friday punctured a 24-year-old righthander's dream of making the big leagues after pitching only 83 innings of professional baseball.

Manager Harry Craft of the Kansas City Athletics announced he is shipping Harry Taylor to Buffalo of the International League along with John Tsitouris, another righthander obtained from Detroit in last winter's 13-player deal.

Taylor, signed by the A's off the University of Texas campus last summer had been rated likely to make the Kansas City staff. Craft said today that had been his opinion, too, until the rookie developed elbow trouble. As for Tsitouris, Craft said, the A's pitching staff was just too big to give him a chance. The cut leaves Craft with 14 hurlers.

Cubs Reported

In Market For

Smokey Burgess

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The Chicago Cubs Friday were reported to be considering a trade with the Cincinnati Reds for catcher Smokey Burgess.

The Cubs, it was rumored, would part with their own No. 1 catcher, Cal Neuman, plus a pitcher, for the good-hitting Burgess. Jim Brosnan or Don Elston would be the pitcher going to the Reds.

Burgess, backing up Ed Bailey last season, batted .283 for the Reds.

The Cubs had Good Friday off and resume exhibition play Saturday here against the Baltimore Orioles.

SOME CHANGE — Dethroned middleweight champion Carmen Basilio has a big smile for nurse Lois Dorndorff as he views his picture made by the Associated Press last week after his title match with Ray Robinson. Basilio left the hospital at Chicago yesterday after being treated nine days for the eye injury he received during the fight. Only a small trace of the injury can be seen and doctors say he can fight again when he chooses. (AP Wirephoto)

Indian Baseballers Outhit But Top Southwestern, 9-8

PONCHATOULA, La. (Special) — Northeast got lots of mileage out of only six hits for a 9-8 triumph over Southwestern of Memphis here yesterday in the second day run in the first, four in the second and four more in the fourth. Southwestern aided the Northeast attack with three errors in the seven inning tilt.

Third baseman Gary Huckaby was the big stickman for George Luffey's Indians with three hits in four trips to drive in three runs.

Northeast will play Mississippi State, perennial power in Southeastern Conference baseball, tomorrow with veteran righthander Lyle Dorsey to start on the mound for the Indians. State whipped Northern Illinois, 14-6, yesterday.

Huey Jinks started for Northeast yesterday and went five innings. After Southwestern led off the sixth with two straight hits, lefthander Jay Gross came in to finish.

The victory was the sixth of the season for Northeast against two ties and three losses. The Indians tied Northern Illinois, 5-5, Thursday in a game called because of darkness.

Southwestern 002 132 0-8 10 3
Northeast 140 400 x-9 6 2
Cannon, Mansfield 4, Rose 6 and Breazeale; Jinks, Gross 6 and Ward.

Two golf contests slated for the week will put the Canine linksters playing host to Quincy College of Illinois on Thursday and Tulane University on Saturday.

Two baseball frays on the home field will put Tech up against Quincy College on Thursday and Northeast Louisiana on Saturday.

In between those two tilts the Bulldogs will move over to Monroe for a Friday afternoon battle with the Northeast Indians.

The Tech trackmen, who competed in the Southwest Recreation Meet and Florida Relays, have defeated Ouachita College in the only dual action to date. In the Southwest Recreation Meet Tech ran up against East Texas and found the Texans to be especially strong in the hurdles and sprints.

Howard Payne has good distance runners while Oklahoma Baptist is expected to be tough in the relays.

In the only tennis action so far this spring, the Canine netters lost a 0-7 match to East Texas State's strong team at Ruston on March 14. Tech's golfers have lost two and won one this season. The Bulldogs defeated Ouachita College and dropped two tilts to McNeese State.

Tech's baseball team will take a 4-3 won-loss mark into the Quincy fray on Thursday. In non-conference competition the Canine diamond crew defeated Ouachita College in two battles and split a two-game series with Southern Illinois University. In three Gulf States Conference games the Techmen lost in the GSC opener to Southeastern Louisiana and split a doubleheader with Northwestern Louisiana.

The fate of the proposed lights for the Forsythe Park tennis courts will be decided by the first of next week, H. W. McSherry, commissioner of finance and utilities, said last night.

McSherry said the cost of the proposed lighting system has not been determined yet but an estimate should be forthcoming by the first of the week.

"We're still kicking it around but we should know by the first of the week postively," McSherry said.

McSherry said earlier this week, after conferring with Tom Underwood, Utilities Commission manager, that the lights would be installed if the cost was not too high. Cost of lighting two of the courts has been estimated around $900.

A coin meter would be installed to regulate the use of the lights. McSherry is also contemplating laying a concrete or blacktop from the edge of the courts to the backstop and repairing the backstops.

Duke Kahanamoku, who won world titles for his swimming feats, is now on the Honolulu police force.

Rebs Beat Tribe With Haile, 7-6

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Relief pitcher Ronnie Haile of the West Monroe Rebels pitched and batted his Reb mates to a 7-6 victory over Fair Park's state triple-A baseball champions here yesterday afternoon in the opening conference game of the season for both clubs.

It was Fair Park's first defeat in nine games this spring. It was West Monroe's second win in four starts.

Haile, who played Teener ball for Wimsboro last year, entered the game in the second inning after two were out and two earlier West Monroe hurlers had been tagged for three hits and handed the Indians a 5-2 lead. The son of a West Monroe grocer held Fair Park to one hit and one run the rest of the way, but the Rebs were still trailing 6-5 when they entered the final frame.

West Monroe loaded the bases in the final inning with the pitcher due to bat. Coach Dan McClure elected to ride with Haile, win or lose, and let his pitcher bat for himself in the crucial situation. Haile promptly poled a two-run single that brought in the tying and winning runs. He put the Tribesmen away in their half of the seventh to earn the victory.

Robert Perkins, Shelby Aulds, and Joe Ford led a nine-hit attack for West Monroe with two hits apiece, one of Perkins' blows going for a triple. Paul Labenne got three hits for Fair Park, one a double.

Fair Park used two pitchers, Ronnie Ruth and Steve Barrett, the latter the loser. Harry Boyd and Garland Webb also pitched for West Monroe.

Kid Gavilan

Tops Jones On

Split Decision

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Cuba's Kid Gavilan, showing flashes of the form which once earned him the welterweight title, outpunched the veteran Ralph "Tiger" Jones of Yonkers, N.Y., Friday night to win a split 10-round decision at the Arena. Gavilan weighed 155, Jones 155½.

Gavilan took another step on what he hopes is the road back to title contention by the simple expedient of landing offener and more telling blows in the nationally televised fight.

The 32-year-old Cuban belied his age as he kept the pressure on the rugged Jones with slashing bolo punches in this third meeting of the two veteran campaigners.

Gavilan won over Tiger back in 1953 and lost to him last February at Miami, Fla.

The two judges, Jimmy Mina and Nate Lopinson scored Gavilan the winner, Mina 47-44, and Lopinson 47-43. Referee Joe Sweeney awarded Jones the decision 46-44. The Associated Press scored it for Gavilan 49-41.

Gavilan appeared in excellent condition as he moved lively around the ring picking Jones' defense apart with a hammering body attack to earn the rubber match in the series between the two.

Neither man was marked although Gavilan twice hurt the New York puncher with whistling bolos, one in the fourth and the other in the sixth round, both to the chin.

Gavilan, who picked up his 106th victory against 29 defeats and six draws since turning pro in 1943, may have qualified for a shot at Garnett "Sugar" Hart, the National Boxing Assn.'s fourth-ranking welterweight.

Promoter Herman Taylor, who did not announce the obviously small crowd and gate for this Good Friday show, had promised the Cuban Keed a bout with the promising Hart if he could take Jones.

Gavilan started slowly but neither man did much damage in the first round. Jones landed the best early punch, a sneaky right to the Cuban's chin.

Gavilan seemed to catch fire after Referee Sweeney warned him early in the second round for hitting low. From this point on he concentrated on a slashing body attack, occasionally whipping a solid right hand to Jones' chin.

Jones' best work was in close and with a short, chopping right with which he occasionally landed on Gavilan's jaw.

The defeat for Jones was his 22nd against 45 victories and four draws.

Cupit Leading Southwestern College Meet

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Jack Cupit, a University of Houston sophomore, was the only player to break par on a wind-swept course Friday as he took the individual medal lead after three rounds in the 72-hole Southwestern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

Cupit's 72-70-72-214 aided Houston in protecting its team medal lead over North Texas State and left Cupit three strokes ahead of Bobby Nichols, Texas A&M, for the individual lead.

Holding third place in team standings was Texas Tech at 921. The Red Raiders were followed by Southern Methodist with 925, Arizona State of Tempe, 932; Texas A&M, 934; Oklahoma State, 942; Louisiana State, 944; Oklahoma, 944; Baylor, 947; Memphis State, 951; Texas, 954; New Mexico, 965; Hardin-Simmons, 966; Notre Dame, 971, and Rice, 990.

Basilio Certain He Could Beat Robinson In Return

By JERRY LISK

CHICAGO (U)—Dethroned midweight champion Carmen Basilio left a hospital and his unlucky fight city Friday, uncertain of everything except he could lick Sugar Ray Robinson if they meet again.

Basilio was snappy and chipper in a news conference following his discharge from Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital. He needed a nine-day treatment of an eye.

Robinson pummeled into a black pullet egg-sized mess when Sugar Ray dethroned him here March 25.

Basilio said it would take a week or two before he decided whether:

1. To seek a rubber match with Robinson.
2. To retire, as his wife, Kay, would like him to do.
3. Or to contemplate regaining the welterweight title he vacated last Sept. 23, when he took the middleweight crown from Robinson in New York.

Basilio, his wife and his two co-managers, John DeJohn and Joe Negro, were to arrive in Syracuse, N.Y., at 6:57 a.m. EST, Saturday.

Basilio, who now has been stripped of both the welterweight and middleweight titles in losing all of his four Chicago appearances, asserted:

"If my eye didn't get hurt, I think I would have stopped Robinson."

Although observers and movies disagree, Basilio said his left eye was injured by a Robinson punch in the fourth round and was shut tight in the fifth round.

Films indicate right uppercut by Sugar Ray late in the fifth round started the trouble and the eye ballooned as the sixth round started.

"It's my eye and I oughta know," said Basilio.

Although Basilio said he'd like to do some trout fishing in Central New York before making future fight plans, he rose to the bait when somebody asked what would happen if he met Robinson in a rubber match.

"I'd like to fight him again," Basilio snapped. "I know I can lick him. He said it didn't make any difference where the fight was, even in this apparent Basilio jinx town."

Basilio was told by his doctor his banged left eye is now in good shape and that after a little rest he could go into training any time he felt fit.

There was some discoloration under the injured eye, but the swelling appeared gone.

Asked if he had picked up his estimated $250,000 purse for the March 25 bout, Basilio said that was his man a g e r s' business.

"Managers don't leave things like that lying around very long, he quipped.

Told some sort of welcoming celebration was planned at the Syracuse railroad station Saturday morning, Basilio blurted:

"At 7 in the morning. Those are crazy guys, they ought to be home in bed."

Joe Negro, one of Basilio's co-managers, said Basilio canceled a scheduled week's appearance with Mickey Rooney at Las Vegas, Nev., beginning next Monday.

REPLACE TAM

PGA Bills Two More Tourneys

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—The Professional Golfers Assn. refusing to back down in its dispute with George S. May, announced Friday that two tournaments are planned this summer at Baltimore and Chicago to replace the rich Tam O'Shanter events May cancelled.

Harold Sargent, PGA president, said plans are almost complete for the new tournaments. They are the Eastern Open, scheduled at Baltimore late in July right after the PGA championship at Havertown, Pa., and the Chicago

Open, tentatively slated to open July 31.

Earlier this week May cancelled his 1958 "World" and All-America tournaments at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter course because of the PGA policy of using entry fees to defray its expenses in such co-sponsored events.

John and Ed McNulty of Chicago are backing the new Chicago Open at the Glenageles Country Club at Lemont, in the greater Chicago area. Sargent said it would be worth at least $50,000 and it was hoped that the Baltimore tournament would be worth $25,000.

In Chicago, John McNulty said he would go to Augusta Friday night by plane to discuss the Glenageles event with the PGA.

"I'm happy to hear that we've landed the tournament," McNulty said. "It's just a matter of signing the contract. I don't think any hitch will come up now to kill the tournament."

Discussing PGA entry fee policy, Sargent said it costs the PGA $2,500 to $3,000 to provide scoring service, conduct a golf clinic and take care of other details at a tournament.

"We have found it simpler to retain the entrance fees and not have to keep going back to the sponsor for more money to provide these services," Sargent said. "That is our policy and it remains unchanged."

Sargent said the complicated Tam O'Shanter events, which included professional and amateur divisions for men and women, cost the PGA $7,000 last year. May said the PGA's retention of the fees this year would mean about three times that amount.

Yankees Farm Out Dick, 8 More Rookies

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (U)—The sad news was handed out Friday to nine more rookies by the New York Yankees.

The American League champs shipped out the nine, including outfielder Deron Johnson, on option to their minor league affiliates. All but Johnson, the 19-year-old early "phenom" of spring training, were sent back to their 1957 clubs.

Johnson was shifted to Richmond of the Triple A International League along with pitchers Ed Dick, Jim Coates and Johnny James, and first baseman John Jacik.

Pitchers Zach Monroe and Mark Freeman and outfielders Dick Sanders and Zeke Bella were transferred to Denver of the Triple A American Assn.

The wholesale chopping reduced the Yankees' squad to 29, just one player over the April 15 limit.

Going to Richmond, however, represents a promotion for Johnson. The young slugger played with Binghamton of the Class A Eastern League last year. He batted .303 for Binghamton, hit 26 homers and drove in 102 runs.

The jump to the majors proved too great. He fanned 10 times and generally was unimpressive against big league pitchers during the exhibition games.

After the releases were announced, Manager Casey Stengel reviewed his club after its 11-12 record in the Grapefruit League and said:

"The pitching hasn't been good down here. I don't know what is wrong with Bob Grim. Sal Maglie has control trouble and Don Larsen's arm is a bit ticklish. But it all will work out in the next two weeks."

"Norm Siebern is my left fielder and Jerry Lumpe is the regular third baseman."

This week, anyway.

PAPER TIGER FAVORED

Rich Gotham Dash Draws 11 Starters

By JOHN CHANDLER

The Associated Press

Older horses hold the spotlight Saturday at most race tracks but starting next week the emphasis will be on 3-year-olds as they head into the Kentucky Derby and other sophomore classics.

Eleven were entered for the $250,000-added Gotham Stakes at Jamaica, with a handful of recent winners making it interesting in the mile and one sixteenth event.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Paper Tiger, who won the Bowie Handicap at Nov. 30 in his last Jamaica start, top the weights under 114 pounds.

Roscoe Maney, who won the Camino Real Handicap at Santa Anita March 5 and equaled Alton's world record for the mile and one quarter, is an entry with Paper Tiger and packs 112 pounds.

The Brookmeade Stable's Encore, winner of the Royal Poinciana and Palm Beach handicaps at Hialeah, has 112, along with Howell E. Jackson's Rick Took. The Cain Hoy Stable's one-eyed King, who nosed out Encore in the Magic City Handicap at Gulfstream last month, has 111, along with Field Of Honor, Jocko's Walk and Mr. Turf.

One race for 3-year-olds is the $20,000-added Richmond Handicap at Golden Gate Fields, but the big California hope for the Kentucky Derby—Silky Sullivan—will be missing. Silky will start at Golden Gate April 11, then fly to Kentucky.

Eight were entered for the six-furlong Richmond, and only the Langollen Farm's Gone Fishin' is a derby nominee. Probable favorite and top weight with 126 pounds is the Gilmore Stable's Prize Host, winner of the Golden Gate Inaugural Handicap.

Eight fillies and mares were entered for the $10,000 Cherry Blossom Handicap, six furlongs, at Laurel: The $15,000 Fort Lauderdale Handicap at Gulfstream Park at a mile and one sixteenth attracted a dozen; while 11 entered the $10,000 New Haven Handicap, seven furlongs, at Lincoln Downs.

William S. Miller's Better Bee, winner of the Appleton Handicap, has high weight of 118 pounds in the Fort Lauderdale. Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Call Me Lucky is next with 112, and goes with a stablemate, Air Pilot, 106.

Ben A. Dairo's Venomous is the probable choice at Laurel, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, nine more than Max Zipkin's Gay Warrior.

S & H Babbitt's Speed Rouser, winner of the Lecompte and Baton Rouge Handicaps at New Orleans, heads the New Haven under 122 pounds. Mrs. Joseph Le-one's Rockcastle, a winner at Lincoln on Monday, has 120.

The Tigers managed only six hits off Charleston pitchers Jerry Paez and Herb Molard.

Mickey McDermott, on the mound for Detroit for the first time since mid-March, was charged with the loss. Ossie Virgil slammed a home run off McDermott with two Charleston mates aboard in the first and the Tigers never caught up.

Dallas Picked For Spot With New Pro Loop

DALLAS (U)—Dallas has been given a franchise in a new professional football league that is scheduled to begin operation next fall.

George Schepps, general manager of the Dallas baseball club, said Friday that he is "very interested" in trying to put a pro football team in the Cotton Bowl.

The International Football League, Inc., is being organized by Jack Corbett, a former Dallas man who has owned several minor league baseball clubs and once operated a chain of theaters, Schepps said.

It is to be a 12-team league, with the cities to be selected from Boston, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Toronto, Montreal, Houston, Dallas, Mexico City, Seattle, Portland, San Diego, Havana, Miami, Louisville and Denver.

Corbett notified Schepps by mail that Dallas, Denver, Miami and Houston are the only cities that already have been granted franchises.

Cronin Feels Fenway Park Is Adequate

BOSTON (U)—Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, said Friday the club is satisfied to remain at its present location—Fenway Park.

Earlier in the week plans for a 10-million-dollar sports center in Norwood to include a 60,000 capacity stadium were announced. Construction would be contingent on the Red Sox using it.

Cronin conferred with Boston Mayor John B. Hynes Friday morning. Hynes has said he favors action to improve parking facilities around Fenway Park. After the meeting Cronin issued this statement:

"I was pleased to read of Mayor Hynes' interest in the Red Sox while en route home from Florida, and felt my first responsibility was to call on him."

"We had a very pleasant visit in which we discussed the future of the Red Sox in Boston. All I can say is that the Red Sox are satisfied to stay in Boston at their present location. There are certain problems which require solution or improvements for the greater benefit of the fans, and the Red Sox and the city of Boston are exploring all possibilities toward that solution."

Brewer Accepts Turn On Mound With Red Hose

SARASOTA, Fla. (U)—Tom Brewer, the ring finger of his pitching hand still swollen and bruised, took a regular turn in pitching practice Friday, an open day for the Grapefruit League-leading Boston Red Sox.

Brewer had suffered a hairline fracture of the finger last Monday when hit by a pitch thrown by Bob Porterfield.

The Red Sox whipped through a two-hour workout after which Sox Manager Mike Higgins announced two pitchers will be trimmed from the roster before the club breaks camp next Tuesday and two more before opening day in Washington, April 14.

The Sox are four players over the 28 limit required opening day. Two returning servicemen, shortstop Don Buddin and catcher Jim Pagliaroni, scheduled to be officially separated from the Army Saturday, do not count in the limit.

Athletics Seem Stronger With Young, Spirited Club

By JOE REICHLER

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (U)—As Harry Craft, the new Kansas City manager sees it, the Athletics have not only the youngest but the best and the most spirited club since they left Philadelphia three years ago.

Craft, who succeeded Lou Boudreau last Aug. 6, would not say his club can improve on last year's seventh place finish despite its respectable record (23-27) after he took over.

"I know we have strengthened," he said, "but to be realistic we may not finish any higher. Sixth is about as good as we can hope for."

RUSSELL OUT?

Celtics, Hawks Tangle Tonight

ST. LOUIS (U)—The Boston Celtics faced the grim fact Friday that their injured defensive star, Bill Russell, may be of little help in the fourth game of the National Basketball Assn. championship playoffs.

The 6-10 rebounding genius continues to take physio-therapy treatments for his badly sprained right ankle.

Dr. Stan London, Hawks team physician, said that if Russell does play at all he'll be swathed in bandages.

Boston, behind 2-1 in the best-of-seven series, needs Russell under the boards to cope with Bob Pettit, Cliff Hagan and 6-11 Charley Share of the Hawks—all slick rebounders.

Russell is walking around on crutches to give the injured foot a rest. He suffered the injury Wednesday night, crashing to the floor after a play on which he was called for goal-tending.

Even if Russell doesn't get into the line-up, the St. Louis team is aware that the classy Celtics won't fold.

They proved that Wednesday night by nearly erasing a 15-point deficit late in the game with Russell sidelined.

Added discomfort for the Celtics was the report that Bob Cousy has a bone bruise in his right foot and is limping. Cousy is the dazzling passer and playmaker who makes the club go. He is expected to play, however.

Calumet's Tim Tam In Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (U)—Tim Tam, Calumet Farm's highly regarded Kentucky Derby colt, arrived at Keeneland Friday from Florida.

The bay son of Tom Fool-Two has won four stakes victories among his six triumphs this season. His $217,775 earnings put him ahead of all other 3-year-old colts.

for. We aren't setting a goal in the standings. Rather, we will set out sights on victories. We are aiming to win at least 70 games. The standings will decide themselves."

Craft believes his A's are improved in three of four departments. They have more speed, stronger arms and are better defensively. Despite their busy trading winter, they did not acquire more power or potential hitting strength and the A's were last in team hitting in 1957. Because of that Craft sees his team light in run-making ability. Because of his team's improved pitching and defense, the young pilot envisions a great many low-scoring games.

"We will have to play for one run earlier," he said. "The success or failure of the club will be our ability to win the one-run ball games. We've got to win our share of those games. The spirit and determination is higher than ever before."

"The boys have the desire and the will to win this year. They're not thinking about last year at all. There's a new spirit, a new frame of mind, a new outlook. They've stopped feeling sorry for themselves."

"It's up to me and my coaches to see that this type of spirit is maintained. If we can't do that, I feel we've let the boys down."

The club, while light on running ability, is stronger than in the past on outfield defense, adequate in the infield, improved in catching, and possibly better on the mound. It is no longer an old club. Only five players remain from the roster that was shifted from Philadelphia in 1955. It is the management's boast that three years have been clipped from the average age of the team.

Three pitchers, not on the roster last spring, are definite starters.

The addition of Frank House from Detroit, and Harry Chitt from Richmond, to give a helping hand to Hal Smith, gives the club solidarity behind the plate.

"We have the semblance of a big league club now," Craft said. "If we get enough desire—the will to win, we'll make the abilities we have go a long way."

Basilio Certain He Could Beat Robinson In Return

By JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO (AP) — Dethroned midweight champion Carmen Basilio left a hospital and his unlikely fight city Friday, uncertain of everything except he could lick Sugar Ray Robinson if they meet again.
Basilio was snappy and chipper in a news conference following his discharge from Chicago Wesley Memorial Hospital. He needed a nine-day treatment of an eye. Robinson pummeled into a black pullet egg-sized mess when Sugar Ray dethroned him here March 25.
Basilio said it would take a week or two before he decided whether:

PGA Bills Two More Tourneys

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—The Professional Golfers Assn. refusing to back down in its dispute with George S. May, announced Friday that two tournaments are planned this summer at Baltimore and Chicago to replace the rich Tam O'Shanter events May cancelled.
Harold Sargent, PGA president, said plans are almost complete for the new tournaments. They are the Eastern Open, scheduled at Baltimore late in July right after the PGA championship at Havertown, Pa., and the Chicago

Yankees Farm Out Dick, 8 More Rookies

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The sad news was handed out Friday to nine more rookies by the New York Yankees.
The American League champs shipped out the nine, including outfielder Deron Johnson, on option to their minor league affiliates. All but Johnson, the 19-year-old early "phenom" of spring training, were sent back to their 1957 clubs.
Johnson was shifted to Richmond of the Triple A International League along with pitchers Ed Dick, Jim Coates and Johnny James, and first baseman John Jakiuk.
Pitchers Zach Monroe and Mark Freeman and outfielders Dick Sanders and Zeke Bella were transferred to Denver of the Triple A American Assn.
The wholesale chopping reduced the Yankees' squad to 29, just one player over the April 15 limit.
Going to Richmond, however, represents a promotion for Johnson. The young slugger played with Binghamton of the Class A Eastern League last year. He batted .303 for Binghamton, hit 26 homers and drove in 102 runs.
The jump to the majors proved too great. He fanned 10 times and generally was unimpressive against big league pitchers during the exhibition games.
After the releases were announced, Manager Casey Stengel reviewed his club after its 11-12 record in the Grapefruit League and said:
"The pitching hasn't been good down here. I don't know what is wrong with Bob Grim. Sal Maglie has control trouble and Don Larsen's arm is a bit ticklish. But it all will work out in the next two weeks."
"Norm Siebern is my left fielder and Jerry Lumpe is the regular third baseman."
This week, anyway.

Series Hero Dusty Rhodes Sent Down

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP) — Jim (Dusty) Rhodes, hero of the Giants' 1954 World Series victory, Friday was sent to the minor leagues by the club as it broke camp here.
Manager Bill Rigney reluctantly told the colorful outfielder that he was being optioned to the club's Phoenix farm team of the Pacific Coast League, now training at the Giants' minor league base at Sanford, Fla.
"I'm sending Dusty out so he can find his bat again," announced Rigney. "He'll play every day to help regain his eye. I'm more interested in him than any man in our organization sentimentally and otherwise."
Rigney vowed he would recall Rhodes in five or six weeks if the fabulous pinch-hitter of 1954-55 hits well for Phoenix. Rhodes, now 30 years old, had been sidelined in spring training for 10 days with severe headaches and was not able to hit his stride.
Rhodes took the dismissal hard. When interviewers jammed the Giants' clubhouse to ask him how he felt about being farmed down, Rhodes swallowed hard and would only say, "No comment." He then silently packed his gear and prepared to depart for the minor camp.
Rigney, however, told newsmen that privately Rhodes had vowed to him that he would be back with the Giants "before the 15th of June."
Rhodes joined the Giants in 1952 after a .354 season at Nashville and bloomed in 1954 when his clutch pinch hits helped the club win the pennant. Rhodes batted .341 and drove in 50 runs with only 56 hits, 15 of them homers.
Rhodes was a key figure in the four-game series sweep over Cleveland that year to help the Giants capture the world's championship. In the first three games of the series, Rhodes drove in the winning runs.
He batted .305 the following year but then slumped to .217 and .205 in the next two seasons.

PAPER TIGER FAVORED

Rich Gotham Dash Draws 11 Starters

By JOHN CHANDLER
The Associated Press
Older horses held the spotlight Saturday at most race tracks but starting next week the emphasis will be on 3-year-olds as they head into the Kentucky Derby and other sophomore classics.
Eleven were entered for the $250,000-added Gotham Stakes at Jamaica, with a handful of recent winners making it interesting in the mile and one sixteenth event. Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Paper Tiger, who won the Bowie Handicap at Nov. 30 in his last Jamaica start, top the weights under 114 pounds.
Roscoe Maney, who won the Camino Real Handicap at Santa Anita March 5 and equaled Alton's world record for the mile and one quarter, is an entry with Paper Tiger and packs 112 pounds.
The Brookmeade Stable's Encore, winner of the Royal Poinciana and Palm Beach Handicaps at Hialeah, has 112, along with Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock. The Cain Hoy Stable's one-eyed King, who nosed out Encore in the Magic City Handicap at Gulfstream last month, has 111, along with Field Of Honor, Jocko's Walk and Mr. Turf.
One race for 3-year-olds is the $20,000-added Richmond Handicap at Golden Gate Fields, but the big California hope for the Kentucky Derby—Silky Sullivan—will be missing. Silky will start at Golden Gate April 11, then fly to Kentucky.
Eight were entered for the six-furlong Richmond, and only the Langgolen Farm's Gone Fishin' is a derby nominee. Probable favorite and top weight with 126 pounds is the Gilmore Stable's Prize Host, winner of the Golden Gate Inaugural Handicap.
Eight fillies and mares were entered for the $10,000 Furlong Blossom Handicap, six furlongs, at Laurel: The $15,000 Fort Lauderdale Handicap at Gulfstream Park at a mile and one sixteenth attracted a dozen; while 11 entered the $10,000 New Haven Handicap, seven furlongs, at Lincoln Downs.
William S. Miller's Better Bee, winner of the Appleton Handicap, has high weight of 118 pounds in the Fort Lauderdale. Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Call Me Lucky is next with 112, and goes with a stablemate, Air Pilot, 106.
Ben A. Dairo's Venomous is the probable choice at Laurel, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, nine more than Max Zipkin's Gay Warrior.
S & H Babbitz' Speed Rouser, winner of the Lecompte and Baton Rouge Handicaps at New Orleans, heads the New Haven under 122 pounds. Mrs. Joseph Leone's Rockcastle, a winner at Lincoln on Monday, has 120.

Dallas Picked For Spot With New Pro Loop

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas has been given a franchise in a new professional football league that is scheduled to begin operation next fall.
George Schepps, general manager of the Dallas baseball club, said Friday that he is "very interested" in trying to put a pro football team in the Cotton Bowl.
The International Football League, Inc., is being organized by Jack Corbett, a former Dallas man who has owned several minor league baseball clubs and once operated a chain of theaters, Schepps said.
It is to be a 12-team league, with the cities to be selected from Boston, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Toronto, Montreal, Houston, Dallas, Mexico City, Seattle, Portland, San Diego, Havana, Miami, Louisville and Denver.
Corbett notified Schepps by mail that Dallas, Denver, Miami and Houston are the only cities that already have been granted franchises.

Cronin Feels Fenway Park Is Adequate

BOSTON (AP)—Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, said Friday the club is satisfied to remain at its present location—Fenway Park.
Earlier in the week plans for a 10-million-dollar sports center in Norwood to include a 60,000 capacity stadium were announced. Construction would be contingent on the Red Sox using it.
Cronin conferred with Boston Mayor John B. Hynes Friday morning. Hynes has said he favors action to improve parking facilities around Fenway Park. After the meeting Cronin issued this statement:
"I was pleased to read of Mayor Hynes' interest in the Red Sox while en route home from Florida, and felt my first responsibility was to call on him."
"We had a very pleasant visit in which we discussed the future of the Red Sox in Boston. All I can say is that the Red Sox are satisfied to stay in Boston at their present location. There are certain problems which require solution or improvements for the greater benefit of the fans, and the Red Sox and the city of Boston are exploring all possibilities toward that solution."

Brewer Accepts Turn On Mound With Red Hose

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Tom Brewer, the ring finger of his pitching hand still swollen and bruised, took a regular turn in pitching practice Friday, an open date for the Grapefruit League-leading Boston Red Sox.
Brewer had suffered a hairline fracture of the finger last Monday when hit by a pitch thrown by Bob Porterfield.
The Red Sox whipped through a two-hour workout after which Sox Manager Mike Higgins announced two pitchers will be trimmed from the roster before the club breaks camp next Tuesday and two more before opening day in Washington, April 14.
The Sox are four players over the 28 limit required opening day. Two returning servicemen, shortstop Don Buddin and catcher Jim Pagliaroni, scheduled to be officially separated from the Army Saturday, do not count in the limit.

Tigers Divide Squad, Split 2 With Farm Clubs

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers split their squad Friday and played two of their farm clubs. They beat Augusta of the Sally League 4-2 but lost to Charleston of the American Assn. 7-4.
The Tigers managed only six hits off Charleston pitchers Jerry Pazie and Herb Moford.
Mickey McDermott, on the mound for Detroit for the first time since mid-March, was charged with the loss. Ozzie Virgil slammed a home run off McDermott with two Charleston mates aboard in the first and the Tigers never caught up.

Girl From Las Vegas

By ANNE ALLISON

Chapter 11
THE STORY THIS FAR: MELANIE LEWIS leaves her small town to join JED SUTTON in Las Vegas where they are to be married in spite of his family's objections. But Jed backs down and Melanie gets a singing job in NICK TARANTINO's club. Melanie sister, JULIE, joins her in Las Vegas to discourage her singing career. Melanie, though successful in her debut, still loves Jed and they plan to be married. SCOTT SUTTON, Jed's uncle, visits Melanie and says Jed is not sincere and plans to marry MARSHA HUNT. Melanie is booked for a singing engagement near her home town and intends to have a showdown with Jed.

It was New Year's Eve and it was raining. A cold wind swept over the southern city where Julie helped her sister dress in a backstage dressing room. "Look at these flowers," Julie cried, indicating the baskets of beautiful blossoms that filled the small room. "All from people in Amesville, too."

"I'm strangely unimpressed," Melanie commented, applying mascara with a steady hand. "It shows they care," Julie insisted. "They're interested in your success."

"Don't be a fool," Melanie cried sharply. "They think I might become famous and they'd like to stay in good with me. In their hearts they're laughing at us just like they used to. Dad. Her eyes suddenly filled with tears. "They didn't send flowers to the funeral . . . they didn't care then."

Julie zipped the red velvet dress embroidered with pearls and sequins. "Melanie, what's really the trouble? Is it Jed Sutton? Haven't you heard from him?"

Melanie fingered the roses on her dressing table. "These are from him. He said he'd telephone me tonight but he hasn't."

"He's probably going to drive over from Amesville."

"With or without Marsha Hunt?"

"Jed can escape from Marsha if he wants to. You know that."

But Jed did not telephone and promptly at 8 o'clock the curtain rose for the first appearance of Melanie Lewis, the Girl from Las Vegas. For once Melanie was nervous. She felt there was no friendliness in the sea of faces before her. She knew them—these Amesville faces. To her they were the epitome of criticism, of snobbery and narrow mindedness. Her violent prejudice against the town rose as she sang and yet she knew that because of her prejudice she would, she must, give an outstanding performance.

Afterwards, people thronged her dressing room but Melanie received their congratulations coldly. Everyone from Amesville, it seemed, was present. Except for the conspicuous absence of the Sutton family.

When the door finally closed Julie said, "You were terrible, Melanie. Couldn't you have been a little more friendly to me when I worked at the Bijou?" Melanie demanded, slipping out of her gown into a warm robe.

"And you talk about me being influenced by the past!"

"I guess we both are," Melanie conceded. "Perhaps it's impossible NOT to be." She walked to the window and watched the rain pouring down in the brick paved alley outside. "Even your desire to live at Fairhaven again is partly self defense."

Julie shook her head in denial. "I want it because it's rightfully ours. The Carmichaels built that house and we're the last of the family. Melanie — you HAVE been saving the money, haven't you?"

"Never fear," Melanie turned from the window. "It's piling up nicely in my savings account."

Julie frowned. "Nick is driving me to Amesville tomorrow. I'm going to stop in the bank and see how much time they'll give us."

"And just how do you think Amesville will receive Nick Tarantino?" Melanie asked pointedly.

The conversation was interrupted by a knock on the dressing room door. The man who entered was young and as blonde as Julie. In his hand he carried a rain-spattered newspaper.

"Paul Henderson," Julie cried in surprise.

"I see you remember me," Julie said pleasantly to the editor of the Amesville Press. "Of course. Why so gloomy? Aren't you planning on writing a publicity story for Melanie?"

"As a matter of fact, it was Melanie I came to see." He looked at the girl at the dressing table. "I wanted to tell you before you saw it in tomorrow's paper."

Melanie turned. "It's Jed, isn't it? Something's happened to Jed!"

"Nothing's exactly happened," Melanie. I mean he's not hurt or anything like that. Maybe you know this. Maybe I'm way out of line coming here."

Melanie was pale. "I don't know anything, Paul. I haven't talked to Jed this evening."

Paul Henderson unfurled the newspaper. "This is tomorrow's, Melanie, and I'm sorry. I'm awfully sorry."

She knew almost before she looked Marsha Hunt's picture, of course, and the caption beneath it informing the world of Amesville that she had announced her engagement to Jed Sutton.

Melanie stared with tear-filled eyes at the roses on her dressing table. She knew that she should hate him and she knew equally well that she did not. Jed would come to her with an explanation, and, fool that she was, she probably would believe him.

New Styled Shoes Ideal For Some

Anyone who doubts today's moderns aren't on the quiver should see the letters from the younger set.

High heels are date favorites, so inquiries on the new pointed toes run the gamut, such as this one...

"I did not like the pointed toe show when it came out so I bought another pair of rounded toes. Now I feel foolish. What should I do? Is the pointed toe comfortable? Are the extra slender needle style heels difficult to wear? Will they break easily? Are they easy to repair?"

A. Wait until it is time to buy another pair of shoes if you've already invested in rounded toes. Don't discard them. Lots of girls are in the same boat.

The pointed toe shoe is very comfortable, particularly if you have a long, narrow foot with tapering toes. The inner side of the shoe is slightly curved, and the outer side tapering. If a second toe is longer than a first toe, there will be room in the new shoes for it to lie straight.

Pointed toe shoes made of leather soles and uppers are particularly well fitting, conforming closely to the shape of the foot. If your foot is short and broad, don't try to wear the pointed toe shoe.

It's a good idea not to wear needle-like heels, except for dress-up occasions. They may make your feet wobble. If the heel breaks it will be difficult to repair. They are problems to have fitted with new lifts, also.

Q. Have you heard of any new taste treats lately? Our party fare is getting mighty static.

A. Tampa, Fla., teen agers are taking their pizza pie with blue cheese. They also eat cake frosting between two slices of bread, chocolate ice cream with grape soda, banana sandwiches, banana with cheese crackers, packaged cereal baked with peanuts. They also like jelly and mayonnaise sandwiches, catsup on corn-on-the-cob and banana-pear-egg milk shakes.

A taste treat admired by New York party goers involved heating one quart of bottled or carton chocolate milk to serving temperature. Combine one cup of whipped heavy cream, and one tablespoon of dehydrated banana. Serve the chocolate topped with the banana cream.

Q. It seems that when I go to parties, everybody has a good time. When my friends come to my house, it seems they can't wait until time to go home. What could be wrong?

A. Maybe you just imagine they are not enjoying themselves. But you must entertain your guests. You can't expect them to sit around waiting for something to happen. Be sure that there is something going on all the time to keep them busy, and try to get the party off to a rolling start after the first few guests arrive. If you can get them to laugh, play the piano, dance or play games, you shouldn't have any trouble in keeping your guests interested.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Night Shift Life Is No Fun—But A Means

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: The letter from the woman whose husband worked the night shift really hit close to home.

My life is a mess because I didn't know how to handle the problem. Please, Ann, print this for the benefit of those who still have a man around.

My husband came out of the service in '45. He wanted a car. I wanted a house. We had a baby and some debts. The only solution seemed to be a double shift. He was strong and healthy and willing to work hard so we could get the things we wanted.

I was alone a lot and kept nagging him. He finally gave up the day job and stuck to nights. His hours were crazy and I couldn't adjust to them. I kept feeling sorry for myself. He got fed up and offered me a divorce. I took it.

Now I'm alone and miserable. Fourteen years of marriage have gone up in smoke. I'm telling you night-shift wives to learn how to keep occupied. Don't make your husband the center of your whole life. Cultivate friends, find a hobby. Keep busy until he comes home, and greet him with a smile.

The only man I ever loved is gone, because I didn't know the things I'm telling you. Now he's married again—to a woman who knows how to be a wife to a night-shift husband.

—MADAME QUEEN WHO LOST HER KING

Dear Ann: I'd like to direct my remarks to Bertha who complained because her husband was working the night-shift and she was "lonesome".

If you'd stop feeling sorry for yourself, Bertha, you might discover you're pretty doggone lucky. Right now there are quite a few husbands out of work. Their wives would be tickled to death to have them on any kind of a shift. Being "lonesome" wouldn't bother them. They'd be happy just knowing they could meet house payments and pay the milk bill.

If you talk your husband into quitting please let me know. I have two brothers who have been Mother died when I was three and my grandmother lives with us. She's no help, in fact she's stricter than Dad. Believe it or not she made me wear long underwear until I was 13 years old.

I'm not boy-crazy and I always conduct myself like a lady. My grades are very good and I've never given my father any trouble. I'm afraid the fellows will get tired of asking me out pretty soon. Do you think I should take drastic steps? Where do I start?

—NANCY

Read Nancy: Start HERE by reading this column to your father.

Dear Dad: It's tough to be both mother and dad—especially to a girl, but don't clip her wings so she can't fly out of the nest—or she'll FALL out, and maybe land on her head.

A girl 17 should be dating. This is the time of her life to learn about young men so she'll be equipped to make an intelligent choice for marriage.

Girls who are deprived of a reasonable amount of freedom often get into serious trouble. They fall for the first bum who offers them an "escape". They don't know how to evaluate male attention. They confuse physical excitement with true love and become an easy target for a smooth talker. Or—they go the other way. They become withdrawn and ingrown because they've had no experience with members of the opposite sex, and therefore no confidence in their capacity to deal with them.

Find the middle road—and fast, before it's too late.

Trial Set For Cuban Rebels In Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (UP)—A federal judge Friday reduced bonds for 35 Cuban rebels and an Ecuadorian freighter captain, set the date for their trial and dressed them down for calling Cuba "my country."

Two of the Cuban leaders, Arnaldo Barron and Mario Lacort, and the Ecuadorian, Jose Medina Bolivar, had their bonds reduced from $7,500 to $1,500.

Other bonds for the band of 35 Cuban rebels were reduced to $500 except for the expedition's chaplain, the Rev. Ignacio Mosqueda Avila, who was released on his own recognizance.

Federal Judge James V. Allred refused Friday to decide whether the rebels were seized in international waters when they were arrested a week ago Thursday.

Allred said this charge would have to be tried on its merits. He set the trial date for May 19.

The Cubans had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The U. S. Coast Guard captured the rebels, most of them naturalized Americans from New York from the freighter El Orion. The rebels went on a hunger strike in protest but started eating again Wednesday night.

"These men have been quoted as saying they were fighting for their country, but I find upon inspection that most of them are U. S. citizens," Allred said.

"If they are citizens of the United States, then this is their country. They are bound to uphold its laws."

Justice of the Peace Charles Windberg ordered an autopsy.

Earlier Friday, authorities identified an April 1 drowning victim whose body was found in the Franklin Canal here as Marcello Caravero, 38, of Juarez, Mexico.

300 Jobs Lost By Integration

DALLAS (AP)—Integration of Oklahoma schools has cost 300 Negro teachers their jobs, a social scientist said Friday.

"The integration of Negro students has not posed a difficult problem but the integration of Negro teachers is proving more difficult," Dr. Virgil Dougherty of Oklahoma City University told the Southwestern Social Science Assn. convention.

There are 431 schools integrated in Oklahoma, he said. More than 6,000 Negro pupils now attend integrated Oklahoma schools.

The association president, Dr. William Davis, said social sciences face the threat of becoming the "step-children in our academic family" if they do not meet

FOR PHYSICALLY DISABLED

Absentee Voter Question Aired

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Political Courage was exhibited in the Legislature this week by three members who argued against allowing the physically disabled to vote absentee.

The 1956 Legislature threw out Mississippi's old absentee voting law, confining the privilege to servicemen on active duty. The action resulted largely from abuses under the physically disabled provision.

Legislators will tell you privately that candidates used to send runners into the countryside and to old folks' homes, collecting absentee votes by the handful.

Sometimes these old folks did not even know who they were voting for," one lawmaker says.

"Doctors who were friends of a candidate for public office turned out certificates wholesale saying certain voters were too aged, infirm or ill to go to the polls."

The issue reached the House floor again by a strange route. Rep. George Carruth of Pike County had offered a bill allowing transportation workers to vote absentee. It was a carefully-drawn bill.

But out of the Elections Committee came an amended bill which also would have restored the privilege to the physically disabled.

With 1959 an election year, House members are uneasy about making any move which might rile the voters. Who would put his political future in jeopardy by making a move?

The challenge came from an unexpected quarter—freshman Rep. E. L. Boteler of Grenada County. He asked the House to take out the committee amendment.

Boteler got immediate support from two members who more often disagree — Rep. Thompson McClellan of Clay County, a member of the powerful Sillers caucus group, and Rep. Joel Blass of Stone County, an administration spokesman.

Old Law
"We all know that the 1956 Legislature threw out our old absentee voter law mainly because of abuses under the physically disabled provision," McClellan told the House. "There were more abuses under that provision than any other."

Blass said fraud and corruption under the old law were "shocking to the public conscience."

Out came the amendment. In a rare reversal of form, the House killed the bill 81-49 Tuesday and revived it by a 70-58 vote Wednesday.

As sent to the Senate, the bill allows only employees in interstate commerce — including railroad workers, truck drivers, seamen, commercial fishermen and mariners — to vote absentee.

After making out an affidavit that their work will take them away from the polls on election day, they can be permitted to cast their ballots in the circuit clerk's office between 10 and 2 days prior to the election.

McClellan told reporters afterward there's no question that some injustices result from denying absentee voting privileges to the physically disabled.

"But these hardships are not so great as the abuses that occurred under the old law," said the doughty lawyer who has served as West Point mayor three times. "In a thing like this, it's the public good that counts."

Blass said he knows of instances where supporters of opposing candidates made a race of gathering up packs of signed doctors' certificates under the old law.

"They bought votes, calling on the sick with a notary public, making out the ballots for them, sometimes without the absentee voter even knowing who he was voting for."

Rates Case Returns To Court Again

The United Gas - City of Monroe gas rate case has returned to the courts, it was learned here yesterday, by virtue of a request for a re-hearing.

Officials disclosed that United Gas filed an application in the Circuit Court of Appeals for a re-hearing.

The Court of Appeals three weeks ago handed down a ruling favoring the City of Monroe. The court's decision returned increased rates to normal.

But attorneys interpreted the United Gas move as meaning that increased rates will remain in effect until the Court of Appeals answers the request.

It is not known when the Court of Appeals will act on the United Gas request.

The late development was the seventh appeal to the courts since the city and United Gas signed a franchise in 1947.

United Gas first went to district court where the Louisiana Public Service Commission was ruled to have jurisdiction in the case.

But the City turned to the Louisiana Supreme Court, where after three decisions, Monroe won, therefore giving the city power to prevent the company from increasing the rates.

However, United Gas filed an injunction in Federal Court and the rates automatically went up. The city was held powerless in interfering with the collection of the increased rates.

Monroe officials then appealed to the Court of Appeals and was favored in the result.

Spending Rises In March, Gov't Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—Spending on new construction rose in March to a value of $3,400,000,000, bringing total outlays for the first quarter to $9,700,000,000, the Commerce and Labor departments reported Friday.

Construction thus continued to be one of the few industries in which activity this year has shown a gain from the same period of last year.

The departments said, however, that the physical volume of new construction put in place probably has not risen from a year ago; higher costs contributed to the slight increase in dollar value.

Federal, state and local outlays for public housing and highways contributed to a seven per cent increase in public building, the departments said.

Private construction outlays in the January-March quarter were about even with the same quarter last year.

Residential construction estimated at $3,350,000,000 in the past three months, was fractionally ahead of a year ago.

Gravel Spread On Two Streets In W. Monroe

Gravel was spread on eight blocks of Wheelis Street and four blocks of Montgomery Street in West Monroe yesterday, preparatory to blacktopping.

Blacktopping on these blocks is expected to be finished by Monday or Tuesday, if the weather remains good. This is part of the street project currently being done in West Monroe, on streets which were damaged by the laying of sewer lines.

All work is being done at city expense, and Mayor J. Allan Norris has promised that the streets will begin as good condition as they were originally, if not better.

It has been calculated that the human body contains 26,500,000,000,000 cells.

Whistle Tuned To Dog's Taste

CHICAGO (UP)—For weeks, the grating sounds of train No. 649's horn has stirred a howling response from dogs along its route from Chicago to Lake Geneva, Wis.

A Crystal Lake, Ill., housewife finally wrote to the Chicago and North Western Railway about it. Her German shepherd dog, Mrs. Gladys Schlossman said "sets up mournful howls every evening when this particular train goes by and blows its horn at our crossing."

Victor Barth, head of the North Western's testing department, sought out the diesel locomotive which pulls 649, and tried several toots.

He exclaimed: "My goodness: F, G and C"—a discord. Then he climbed atop the engine and tuned the "C" horn two notes lower, to "A"—making a harmonious chord. He grinned as the new three-note chord sounded. "That's better," said Barth, who for the last 20 years has been director of a chorus.

Railroad officials crossed their fingers and hoped the dogs along the route will think so too.

Dynamite Blast Rips Into Car, Building

MANCHESTER, Ky. (UP)—Sheriff T. C. Sizemore said Friday a dynamite blast Thursday night ripped a hole in the rear of his car and damaged a nearby newspaper-radio station building.

The car was unoccupied and no one was injured.

Frank Nolan publisher of The Manchester Enterprise and owner of the building, estimated it would require several hundred dollars to replace broken windows and an electric sign and repair other damage.

The sheriff, who said he has been conducting a "war on boot-legging racketeers which could have accounted for what happened," said he had telegraphed state safety commissioner Don S. Sturgill, asking for extra state troopers to be stationed in the county at night.

MANY OFFER HELP

Family Has Hope In Face Of Strife

By AUSTIN ABRAMS Staff Writer

A fire-stricken family of 12 yesterday looked hopefully toward Easter as Twin City residents contributed clothing and furniture to ease their plight.

The expectant mother returned at noon from St. Francis Hospital where she had been treated for shock after helping rescue eight children from her blazing home Thursday morning.

She reported the fire and helped rescue five of her own children and three of a friend's—all under six.

Lost Everything Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Johnson, who have ten children at home, lost everything they had in the blaze. The house caught from a hay-filled Selman Field warehouse nearby which burned.

Mrs. I. H. Farnell, mother of three of the rescued children, said last night the family had rented a house on Bell Avenue.

Twin City residents, the Salvation Army, and the Red Cross contributed clothing, bedding, a stove, some furniture, groceries, and a month's rent.

Several gifts of money had been received.

The Salvation Army negotiated for a washing machine also.

Need More Mrs. Farnell explained that the family had received enough clothing and beds, but still needed furniture, sheets, pillows, towels, silverware, and kitchen ware. She said one critical need is a refrigerator.

The family gave its thanks yesterday to all who have aided them. Commenting on the charity of Twin City residents the father said yesterday, "Thursday we had nothing; today, everything."

Murderer Draws 99-Year Sentence

HALLETTVILLE, Tex. (UP)—Sandy Lumpkin, 17, was convicted Friday of murdering Jay Evans in front of his home last Christmas night and was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

The jury deliberated only one hour and 20 minutes. District Judge Lester Holt, in whose court the trial was held on a change of venue from Houston, polled the jurors one by one to make sure they all agreed.

Prosecutor Jon Hughes told the jury in his final plea that the murder of 15-year-old Evans was "completely wanton and needless."

"Jay was at home, where he had a right to be—not riding around with a loaded .38 revolver in his pocket like the defendant. He was playing with boys of his own age in his own driveway with a toy rifle."

The defense argued that Lumpkin thought he was defending himself from an attack with a rifle when he shot Evans.

Miss. Request To Be Attacked By Negro Rev.

GULFPORT, Miss. (UP)—Mississippi's request for more time to prepare for a federal court test of the state's voter registration laws will be opposed Saturday by the Negro plaintiff.

An attorney for the Rev. H. D. Darby of Prentiss, Miss., said he will ask Federal Judge Sidney C. Mize instead to "set an early date for the hearing."

Mississippi Atty. Gen. Joe T. Patterson is expected to be on hand in person to argue his request that he be given until June 1 to answer Darby's charges that voter registration laws are interpreted and administered so as to disenfranchise Negroes.

Jess Brown, Vicksburg Negro attorney, said Friday he will also be in court here, to resist Patterson's motion. Patterson asked the extension because of pending court cases and the fact the Legislature is in session.

The Legislature is expected to adjourn later this month.

Judge Mize is one of three Mississippi federal judges who have been named to hear Darby's suit, which is the first challenge under the new civil rights law again Mississippi election laws.

The others who will hear the case are Judge Claude Clayton of the northern district and Judge Ben Cameron of Meridian, a member of the U. S. Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Virginia Man Returned Here To Face Charges

A 30-year-old Virginian has been returned to Monroe to face a forgery charge involving $247, police said yesterday.

Monroe Asst. Police Chief George Wood identified the man as Jackson O. Gilbert, Virginia Beach, Va. Wood said Gilbert was booked on a forgery charge placed in the parish jail.

According to Wood, Gilbert is charged with allegedly forging a check here on Feb. 9 in the amount of $178. Gilbert is alleged to have forged a $69-check here February 10th, Wood said.

The charged man was arrested in Princess Anne, Va., several days ago and returned to Monroe by the Ouachita sheriff's department, officials said. No bond was set.

House Probers Ask Inquiries

WASHINGTON (UP)—House investigators called Friday for Justice Department action on "the violations of law thus far disclosed" in their probe of the Federal Communications Commission.

A preliminary report by the special House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight did not go into details. Chairman Harris (D-Ark.) told reporters at a news conference that the record already has been furnished to the Justice Department. And he said: "I do not think it was our responsibility to pinpoint these things item by item and charge individuals by name in this report."

Previously Harris has mentioned possible violations of law in contacts which interested parties have made with FCC commissioners on pending cases. Friday he also mentioned perjury.

The subcommittee has heard some apparently conflicting testimony in its weeks-long inquiry into a fight for TV Channel 10 in Miami, Fla.

In general, the House investigators said their hearings to date "have revealed certain highly improper activities in connection with the Federal Communications Commission" which should be brought to the attention of the House for early remedial action. They said the hearings have revealed that over the years a pattern has developed of "questionable conduct" on the part of some commission members and some industry organizations and individuals who are subject to commission regulation.

"The questionable propriety of some of this conduct, in the opinion of the subcommittee, has seriously undermined public confidence in the Federal Communications Commission thus affecting adversely the administration of law by the commission," the report said.

The report made little mention of the Miami case beyond saying the hearings "have revealed the pressures brought on some members of the commission" and "pressures of this kind cannot be tolerated."

Harris said the subcommittee report did not go into the Miami case because it now is in the hands of the Justice Department, which has started its own investigation.

The inquiry on pressures and attempted influence in the Miami case led to the resignation last month of FCC member Richard A. Mack of Miami.

Texans Getting Horse Laugh On Public Relations

LONGVIEW, Tex. (UP)—Texans, used to bragging about their oil riches, are now getting the horse laugh, the East Texas Chamber of Commerce said Friday.

"The cause is poor public relations in the oil business, the chamber said.

"Oil, long the king in Texas, is having a hard time right now," the chamber said in a slick-paper circular signed by Fred Pool.

"When we should be getting some sympathetic understanding in other circles, we are now getting instead what amounts to a sometimes not too polite horse laugh," the circular said.

"Let's face it. When it comes to the oil business, our public relations are bad. And they have been bad for a long time.

"The bragging we have done in Texas over the years, and especially during the past dozen years may cost us dearly during the next dozen. It could easily happen.

"Already we are feeling resentment in many regions of the country against some of the actions of some of our people."

Cashier Held While Probe On Books Continue

MARKSVILLE, La. (UP)—Officers held a cashier employed by the nearby Moreauville State Bank in jail here Friday while state bank examiners audited the bank's records.

State troopers arrested Emmett Gauthier, 34, in Laplace Thursday. He left a note at his home which Mrs. Gauthier said indicated her husband was en route to New Orleans where he planned to either surrender to the FBI or commit suicide.

State banking examiner E. J. Jeansonne and his agents were checking the Moreauville bank books, but refused to discuss the investigation.

Bank president E. Gauthier also declined to comment on the matter.

However, W. T. Nolin, chairman of the board at the bank, issued a statement saying:

"Some irregularities are apparent in the Moreauville bank. At the present time no definite amount has been determined. A thorough audit of the bank is now under way and a statement regarding the amount will be made at the completion of the audit."

Nolin said any loss is fully recovered by insurance.

Sheriff F. O. Didier of Avoyelles Parish said Gauthier was being held for investigation until the audit is completed.

Whistle Tuned To Dog's Taste

CHICAGO (AP)—For weeks, the grating sounds of train No. 649's horn has stirred a howling response from dogs along its route from Chicago to Lake Geneva, Wis.

A Crystal Lake, Ill., housewife finally wrote to the Chicago and North Western Railway about it. Her German shepherd dog, Mrs. Gladys Schlossman said "sets up mournful howls every evening when this particular train goes by and blows its horn at our crossing."

Victor Barth, head of the North Western's testing department, sought out the diesel locomotive which pulls 649, and tried several toots.

He exclaimed: "My goodness: F, G and C." — a discord. Then he climbed atop the engine and tuned the "C" horn two notes lower, to "A"—making a harmonious chord. He grinned as the new three-note chord sounded. "That's better," said Barth, who for the last 20 years has been director of a chorus.

Railroad officials crossed their fingers and hoped the dogs along the route will think so too.

Dynamite Blast Rips Into Car, Building

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—Sheriff T. C. Sizemore said Friday a dynamite blast Thursday night ripped a hole in the rear of his car and damaged a nearby newspaper-radio station building.

The car was unoccupied and no one was injured.

Frank Nolan publisher of the Manchester Enterprise and owner of the building, estimated it would require several hundred dollars to replace broken windows and an electric sign and repair other damage.

The sheriff, who said he has been conducting a "war on bootlegging racketeers which could have accounted for what happened," said he had telegraphed state safety commissioner Don S. Sturgill, asking for extra state troopers to be stationed in the county at night.

Family Has Hope In Face Of Strife

By AUSTIN ABRAMS Staff Writer

A fire-stricken family of 12 yesterday looked hopefully toward Easter as Twin City residents contributed clothing and furniture to ease their plight.

The expectant mother returned at noon from St. Francis Hospital where she had been treated for shock after helping rescue eight children from her blazing home Thursday morning.

She reported the fire and helped rescue five of her own children and three of a friend's—all under six.

Lost Everything Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Johnson, who have ten children at home, lost everything they had in the blaze. The house caught from a hay-filled Selman Field warehouse nearby which burned.

Mrs. I. H. Farnell, mother of three of the rescued children, said last night the family had rented a house on Bell Avenue.

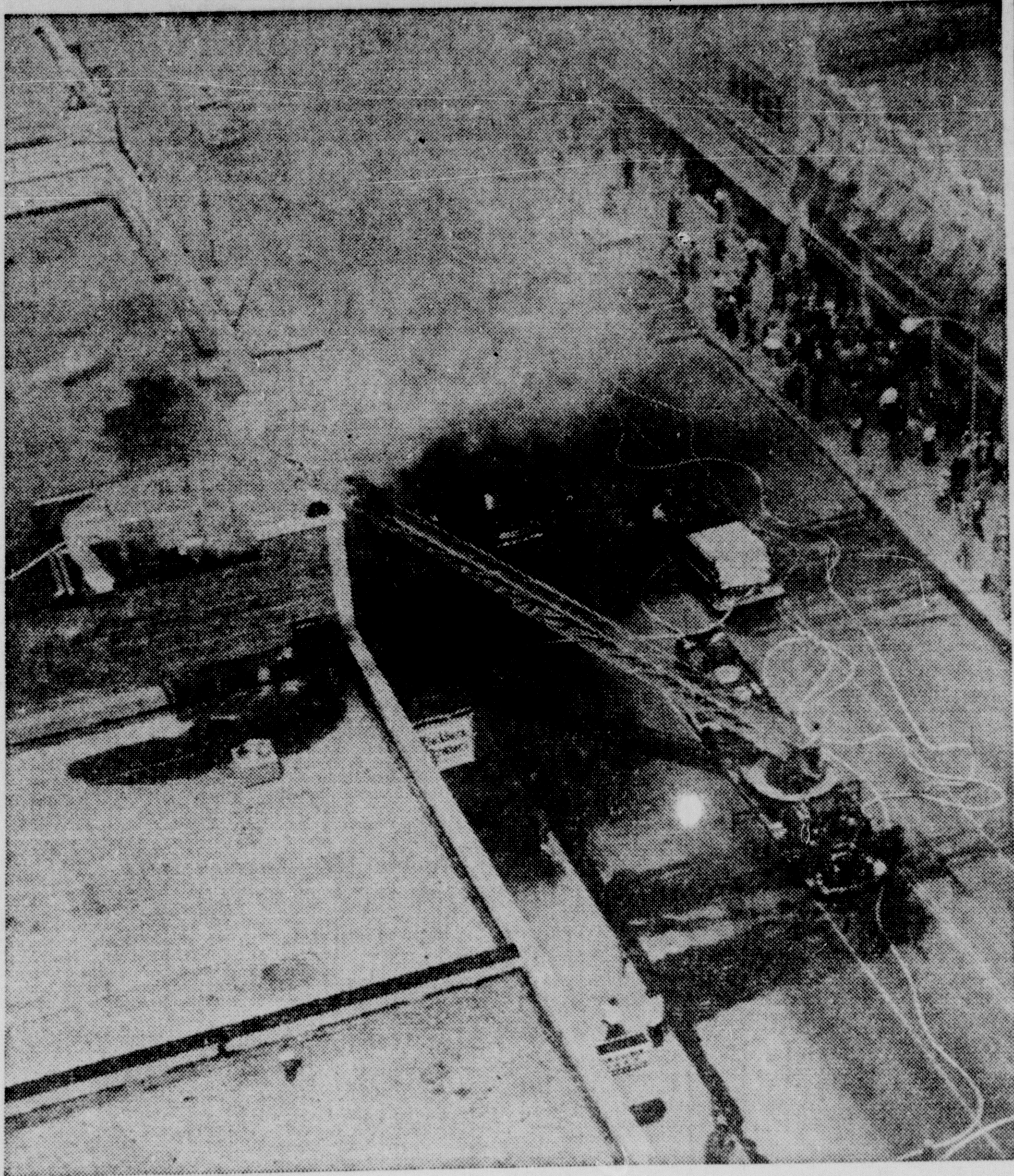

Twin City residents, the Salvation Army, and the Red Cross contributed clothing, bedding, a stove, some furniture, groceries, and a month's rent.

Several gifts of money had been received.

The Salvation Army negotiated for a washing machine also.

Need More Mrs. Farnell explained that the family had received enough clothing and beds, but still needed furniture, sheets, pillows, towels, silverware, and kitchen ware. She said one critical need is a refrigerator.

The family gave its thanks yesterday to all who have aided them. Commenting on the charity of Twin City residents the father said yesterday, "Thursday we had nothing; today, everything."

EX-WINNSBORO MAN

Wife Says Husband May Be Suffering

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — "A possible attack of amnesia" is the only clue Mrs. Tommy Pruitt of Natchitoches could give last night on the 9-day disappearance of her husband, which has authorities baffled.

Pruitt, 45-year-old former Winnsboro resident, walked out of the insurance office where he worked about 9:30 a.m. last Thursday, after reportedly telling co-workers he was going "out on business" and would be back by 11 a.m.

He had been to his home about 30 minutes before his disappearance, to deliver some items to his wife.

No Clues
All his immediate relatives have been contacted, and none had seen or heard from him. However, a barber in Taylor, Ark., near Springhill, has said he shaved a man answering Pruitt's description last Friday, and that the man said he was from Natchitoches and was looking for work.

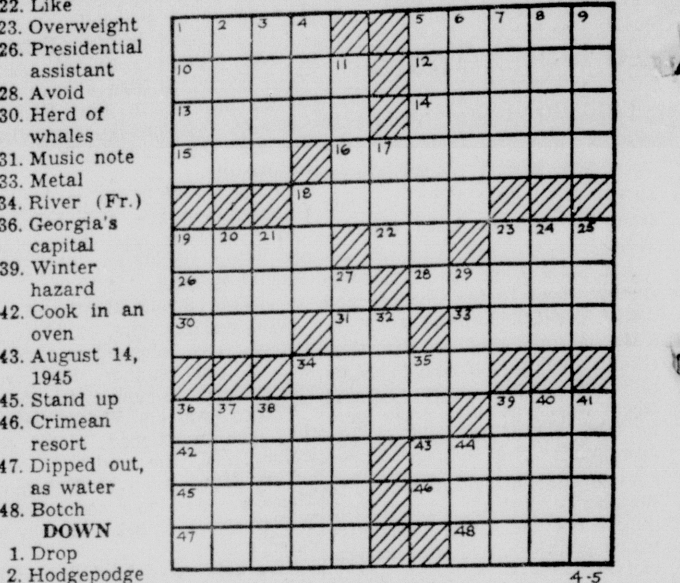

Mrs. Pruitt said last night that she personally has not talked with the barber, but that one of her brothers and one of her husband's brothers have talked with him.

She added that her husband's brother is convinced, after talking with the barber, that the man he shaved was Pruitt.

Pruitt was a grocery clerk in Winnsboro before moving to Natchitoches eight years ago, and was described by authorities as a well-liked, stable man. There has been no evidence of foul play.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

35 Curb Cops Purchased By City Council

Thirty-five "Curb Cops" purchased by the City of Monroe are expected to be installed by the last of next week, Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard said yesterday.

Howard said a recent trial of the parking fine receptacles proved satisfactory enough to warrant their permanent use.

The mayor explained the metal boxes will be installed on every block which has parking meters providing a convenience for the driving public.

A system incorporated with the use of "Curb Cops" involves the use of a combination parking ticket-envelope. A motorist simply places his parking fine in the envelope and drops it in the receptacle. This eliminates a trip to city hall.

The "Curb Cops" are small metal boxes attachable to any parking meter. Howard said the boxes will be painted yellow for easy sighting.

The "Curb Cops" arrived yesterday, the mayor said.

Police Probing Misdemeanors In W. Monroe

West Monroe Police yesterday were continuing investigation of two misdemeanors involving automobiles parked at West Monroe High School Thursday night.

Arnold Melin, 2500 Cypress St., West Monroe, told authorities a quarter of a tank of gasoline was drained from his car while it was parked at the school. He reported that he had found a rubber hose, apparently used to drain the gas, near his car.

Mrs. Sue Hardin, 125 Lomaland, West Monroe, said her car was ransacked while parked at the school, but apparently nothing was taken.

LOW MORTGAGE DOWN-PAYMENT

Ike Announces Plan To Spur Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an effort to whip up the sluggish home building industry, President Eisenhower Friday announced a return to the no-down-payment plan for GI mortgage loans.

The action was one of seven announced by the White House to stimulate home building and make it easier for buyers to obtain financing.

Effective immediately, the President said the Veterans Administration has removed the two per cent down payment requirements on VA-guaranteed home loans. This requirement was imposed on July 30, 1955 as an anti-inflationary measure.

Optional The White House said it will remain optional for lenders to require a down payment but the VA does not expect such demands to develop generally.

Although no down payment will be required starting Friday veterans will continue to have to pay in cash the expenses of closing the loan. These settlement costs, which include title searching fees, filing fees and similar expenses, often run into hundreds of dollars.

Elimination of the down payment requirement on VA loans was one of two administrative actions announced by the President, who is weekend at Gettysburg, Pa.

These other actions carrying out provisions of the new housing act were announced.

Lower Down Payment The Federal Housing Administration has put into effect, beginning April 1, the lower down payments permitted. This means the required three per cent now applies to the first $13,500 of the mortgage, instead of to only the first $10,000 of value as heretofore.

Higher rates apply above $13,500. FHA already has announced this provision applies to loan applications pending or in process, as well as to new ones.

2. Controls on fees, charges and discounts on mortgages which have been in effect since Aug. 5,

1957 have been eliminated by both VA and FHA.

3. The VA has put into effect a new maximum interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent on its guaranteed home loans. The previous maximum was 4 1/4 per cent.

4. FHA has set the maximum interest rate on FHA-insured military housing mortgages at 4 1/4 per cent, up from 4 per cent. The new law permits as high as 4 1/2 per cent.

5. The FNMA has issued new regulations setting forth terms on which it will use its new authority dealing with purchase of FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages on low or moderately priced homes. The mortgage may not exceed $13,500 in individual cases.

Heiress, Hubby Seem Ready To Call It Quits

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—The highly publicized marriage of Frederika (Bobo) Sigrist, 18-year-old British heiress, and Gregg Juarez is reported on the rocks.

Close friends of Bobo's family reported Friday that Juarez, a New York interior decorator, bought a one-way plane ticket to New York Tuesday after a family argument and cancellation of a large dinner party at the Sigrist home.

Bobo and her mother have faded from the Nassau social scene since the reported breakup. Neither will answer the telephone when friends call.

Miss Sigrist, then 17, and the 32-year-old Juarez met when he went to Nassau to redecorate a hotel owned by Baroness Lyssard von Hoyningen-Huene, the former Nancy Oakes.

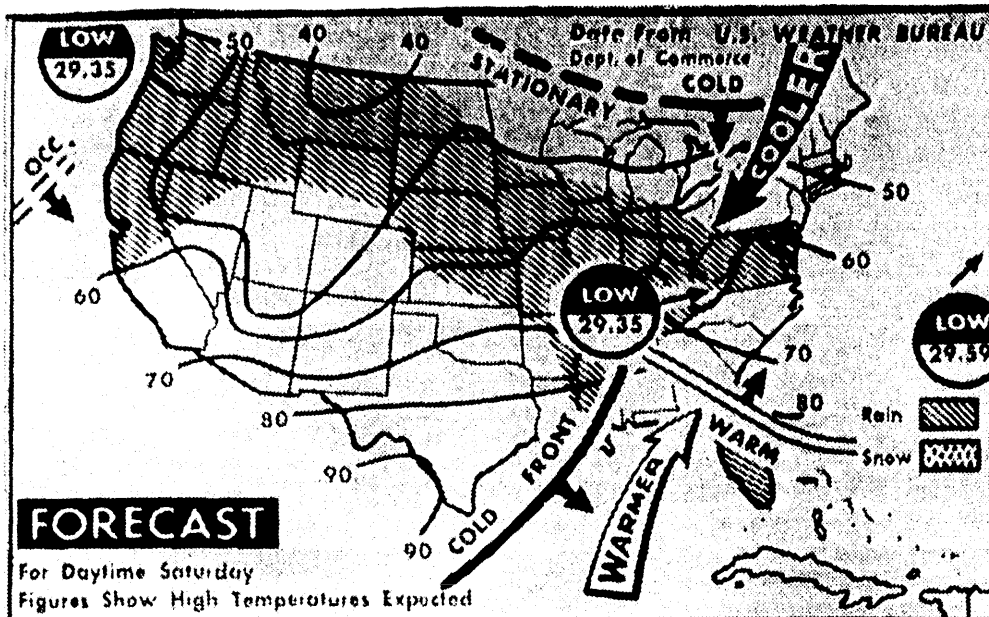

They eloped in the private plane of a friend and were married in the Dominican Republic Jan. 30, 1957. Next day, they hopped to San Juan, Puerto Rico, and were married in another civil ceremony after a question was raised as to the legality of the first wedding.

In their travels through the Caribbean, Bobo and Gregg kept one jump ahead of detectives hired by her mother, who opposed the marriage and wanted to get her daughter back.

Bobo's father, Frederick Sigrist, was one of the founders of the Hawker Aircraft Co. He died Dec. 10, 1957, leaving an estate worth about five million dollars.

Bobo and Gregg came to Nassau with their baby daughter, Bianca, the first week in February. Friends of the family said Mrs. Juarez had been outspoken about her husband's failure to obtain work.

RADIOACTIVE PARTICLES

New York, NE U.S. Get Brunt Of Atom

NEW YORK (AP)—New York and the northeastern United States, and is equal to one gram of due to a quirk of nature, have received more radioactive particles from nuclear bomb tests than other areas, according to a study by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Last year the fallout jumped 50 per cent, although the AEC emphasized the level is still far below the amount likely to cause damage to human bones.

The accumulated amount of radioactive strontium, brought down in rain, has been steadily increasing since the AEC began taking samples four years ago.

The AEC set 100 strontium units as the danger level. Theoretically, the amount of strontium falling on New York since 1954 could put five strontium units in the bones of children here—a twentieth the danger level.

Results Dr. Libby said, however, the actual results would be five times less than this—or about one-hundredth of the danger level.

The AEC study was printed last February and used by Dr. Libby in a speech last month in Geneva.

The study lists fallout in other cities and other lands but none of the statistics cover the same duration as those for New York.

Comparison for the same months with New York, however, show Salt Lake City is nearly as high, and Pittsburgh about two-thirds as high. The amounts recorded fluctuate month by month, and from place to place.

New York, for example, ranged from a high of about 5 millicuries, for last April down to 0.32 for January.

'Easter Rock' Church Services Set By Negroes

WINNSBORO (Special)—The "Easter Rock," a traditional Negro church service of this area, is scheduled to be held here tonight.

Long a highlight of the Easter season for Negro churches of the Winnsboro area, the "Easter Rock" will be held in several churches, according to deacon O'Quilla Anderson of the St. John Baptist Church here.

The service features members of the churches dressed in white. They assemble around a table loaded with food and drink, sing and rock back and forth, waving banners.

Observers in this area say it has always been a big attraction of the Easter season. White people usually attend as spectators.

The services are scheduled to start at 8:30 p.m. and run past midnight. Impromptu speeches and talks are given often.

Materials Can Be Moved From Fire Ant Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Materials that might carry the destructive fire ant must be inspected and certified to be pest-free before they may be moved legally in interstate commerce from quarantined areas, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Inspectors will be stationed in various parts of areas in eight southern states to be placed under quarantine for the fire ant.

May 6. Included are parts of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas.

It will be incumbent upon shippers to have materials inspected by the federal agents. Inspectors will determine first if such materials are from an infested area.

If not, they will be certified for shipment without further ado.

If the materials are from an infested area but are soil-free they too may be shipped without restrictions.

If from an infested area and if they have soil attached, such materials must be treated or fumigated before they may be shipped. In all instances shippers must carry certifications of the federal inspectors.

Transportation agencies as well as shippers have responsibility under the quarantine. Transportation agencies are liable to fines if they accept and ship materials that are not certified by the inspectors for shipment.

Articles subject to regulation when moved interstate from the quarantined areas:

Tax Pamphlet Published By State Group

A 16-page pamphlet on the property tax in Louisiana, entitled "Let's Talk Taxes," was recently published by the League of Women Voters in Louisiana.

The property tax has been the subject of many critical studies by tax experts and students of government and the league believes the time has come for all Louisiana citizens and taxpayer to be equally concerned.

Once the major source of all United States government revenue, the property tax has been abandoned by the federal government and by many state governments. Louisiana still includes the property tax among its 47 state taxes.

The booklet takes a look at both the decline of the property tax as a tax source, and at the resistance of Louisiana citizens to new or increased taxes, as evidenced by the 1956 constitutional amendment requiring a 2-3 vote of the legislature on tax bills.

LOW MORTGAGE DOWN-PAYMENT Ike Announces Plan To Spur Business

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an effort to whip up the sluggish home building industry, President Eisenhower Friday announced a return to the no-down-payment plan for GI mortgage loans.

The action was one of seven announced by the White House to stimulate home building and make it easier for buyers to obtain financing.

Effective immediately, the President said the Veterans Administration has removed the two percent down payment requirements on VA-guaranteed home loans. This requirement was imposed on July 30, 1955 as an anti-inflationary measure.

Elimination of the down payment requirement on VA loans was one of two administrative actions announced by the President, who is weekending at Gettysburg, Pa.

Lower Down Payment

1. The Federal Housing Administration has put into effect, beginning April 1, the lower down payments permitted. This means the required three percent can now apply to the first $13,500 of the mortgage, instead of to only the first $10,000 of value as heretofore. Higher rates apply above $13,500. FHA already has announced this provision applies to loan applications pending or in process, as well as to new ones.

2. Controls on fees, charges and discounts on mortgages which have been in effect since Aug. 5,

1957 have been eliminated by both VA and FHA.

3. The VA has put into effect a new maximum interest rate of 4 1/2 percent on its guaranteed home loans. The previous maximum was 4 1/4 percent.

4. FHA has set the maximum interest rate on FHA-insured military housing mortgages at 4 1/4 percent, up from 4 percent. The new law permits as high as 4 1/2 percent.

5. The FNMA has issued new regulations setting forth terms on which it will use its new authority dealing with purchase of FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages on low or moderately priced homes. The mortgage may not exceed $13,500 in individual cases.

Auditor Approves Bookkeeping Of City School Board

Members of the Monroe City School Board have been notified of a favorable audit report by J. B. Lancaster, supervisor of public funds in Louisiana, for the period of Sept. 14, 1956, to June 30, 1957.

The single criticism in the report was for the expenditure of $25.50 for floral offerings during the 9-month period.

When asked about the criticism, Supt. Van D. Odum said the money was used to send flowers to the funeral of the late E. L. Neville, who served the city school system for more than 40 years, 38 years of which he was superintendent.

Odum added that he had no apologies to offer for this action.

A surplus of $238,934.65 was shown by the audit. However, from this a total of $204,239.60 had to be taken for teachers' summer salaries.

In his letter to Gov. Earl K. Long, with carbon copies to Odum and T. H. Scott, board president, Lancaster said the department was "pleased to state that the accounting records have been maintained in an excellent manner, and we acknowledge with appreciation the courtesies extended our representative."

'Easter Rock' Church Services Set By Negroes

WINNSBORO (Special) — The "Easter Rock," a traditional Negro church service of this area, is scheduled to be held here tonight.

Long a highlight of the Easter season for Negro churches of the Winnsboro area, the "Easter Rock" will be held in several churches, according to deacon O'Quilla Anderson of the St. John Baptist Church here.

The service features members of the churches dressed in white. They assemble around a table loaded with food and drink, sing and rock back and forth, waving banners.

Observers in this area say it has always been a big attraction of the Easter season. White people usually attend as spectators.

The services are scheduled to start at 8:30 p.m. and run past midnight. Impromptu speeches and talks are given often.

Materials Can Be Moved From Fire Ant Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Materials that might carry the destructive fire ant must be inspected and certified to be pest-free before they may be moved legally in interstate commerce from quarantined areas, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Inspectors will be stationed in various parts of areas in eight southern states to be placed under quarantine for the fire ant May 6. Included are parts of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas.

It will be incumbent upon shippers to have materials inspected by the federal agents. Inspectors will determine first if such materials are from an infested area. If not, they will be certified for shipment without further ado.

If the materials are from an infested area but are soil-free they too may be shipped without restrictions.

If from an infested area and if they have soil attached, such materials must be treated or fumigated before they may be shipped. In all instances shippers must carry certifications of the federal inspectors.

Transportation agencies as well as shippers have responsibility under the quarantine. Transportation agencies are liable to fines if they accept and ship materials that are not certified by the inspectors for shipment.

Articles subject to regulation when moved interstate from the quarantined areas:

Tax Pamphlet Published By State Group

A 16-page pamphlet on the property tax in Louisiana, entitled "Let's Talk Taxes," was recently published by the League of Women Voters in Louisiana.

The property tax has been the subject of many critical studies by tax experts and students of government and the league believes the time has come for all Louisiana citizens and taxpayers to be equally concerned.

Once the major source of all United States government revenue, the property tax has been abandoned by the federal government and by many state governments. Louisiana still includes the property tax among its 47 state taxes.

The booklet takes a look at both the decline of the property tax as a tax source, and at the resistance of Louisiana citizens to new or increased taxes, as evidenced by the 1956 constitutional amendment requiring a 2-3 vote of the legislature on tax bills.
